Monday: #MCM (Man Crush Monday)

CHRIS EVANS is, unsurprisingly, our #MCM of the week! The actor and his perfect beard have beautified so many red carpets, some of which include the premiere of Fantastic Four, Captain America: The Winter Soldier, What's Your Number?, The Avengers and, more recently, the film Before We Go, which he stars in and directed. Besides working on Before We Go, the 34-year-old has also filming Captain America: Civil War and focusing on himself. Evans admits that he enjoys a little 'me' time every once and a while. He also says that he plans to be the only Captain America for as long as he can. "Listen, if Marvel wants me, they got me," he said. We couldn't agree more!

Tuesday: #TBH (To Be Honest)

JESSICA SIMPSON is back on the scene at the moment, and if you're wondering why, it's because she is in New York to celebrate the 10th anniversary of her fashion 'empire'. And if you're wondering why we've done the air quotes thing on empire, one look at this pic of Jess should explain it all. If we're going to be honest – which is the point of our #TBH feature – the top half of the outfit looks like a bronze winning ice skater's costume from the 1948 Winter Olympics, whilst the pants, well, let's be kind and say she must have bought those from an Amish thrift shop.

Wednesday: #WCW (Woman Crush Wednesday)

AT the age of 67 – we know, right? Wowzers! – Grace Jones is releasing a memoir, appropriately titled I'll Never Write My Memoirs, and in true Grace fashion, she goes all out about the entertainment industry, and even takes a stab at a long list of female singers, who she refers to as 'wannabes'. In an excerpt published recently, Grace wrote: "Trends come along and people say, 'Follow that trend'. There's a lot of that around at the moment: 'Be like Sasha Fierce. Be like Miley Cyrus. Be like Rihanna. Be like Lady Gaga. Be like Rita Ora and Sia. Be like Madonna.' I cannot be like them – except to the extent that they are already being like me."

Saturday: #SS (Shirtless Saturday)

LUKE EVANS recently had us all going weak at the knees recently after going shirtless and showing off his fit body in Mykonos, Greece. The fact that he was wearing just a tiny speedo at the same time didn't make things any harder to enjoy either! The 36-year-old actor, who will soon be seen as Gaston in the live-action Beauty And The Beast film, left absolutely nothing to the imagination in his skintight swim trunks.

Hello Everyone! Ed's Letter

ANOTHER week, another people Magazine, and boy do we have some heart-wrenching real life articles for you. Get your tissues out!

An elderly bear named Choluta was snatched from the rainforest nearly 25 years ago. She was abused and neglected in a circus, where they mutilated her claws and broke her teeth. She also lost most of her fur. Luckily, Choluta's story does have a happy conclusion, as she has been rescued from her life of cruelty. Turn to pages 76 and 77 to read this remarkable story.

Also, we have The Underdog Project, which is a non-profit organisation in the Western Cape that was started in 2011 and brings together underprivileged teenagers and shelter dogs that have been abandoned, abused and neglected. What makes this organisation stand out for me is that they run classes aimed at engaging and inspiring teenagers to re-orientate their lives by bonding with the animals, which in turn helps these shelter dogs find new homes. Turn to page 83 to read this heart-warming story. Then there's the story of Kari Keith, who seemed to have the perfect life: she was married to the man of her dreams for 15 years, had four beautiful children and lived in a lovely home. Then the police knocked on her door... It turns out her husband Lonnie had been leading a double life as a serial rapist! I can't imagine the shock the family must have gone through. Turn to pages 86 and 87 to see how Kari and her family handled this shattering revelation!

Thursday: #TBT (Throwback Thursday)

AWWWWW! Look at Nick Cannon before he encountered his exes Kim Kardashian and Mimi? The funnyman recently shared a pic of himself playing a keyboard captioned: "#TBT as you can see, I've always been a #RadioShack brat. Love for music been strong since I was knee-high! #ad" Who would have thought that this cute kid would end up married (and divorced) to one of the biggest selling songstress in the world, eh?

Friday: #FFF (Fun Fact Friday)

AT 17h30 on Wednesday September 9, 2015, Queen Elizabeth II became Britain's longest-ruling monarch. Her Maj, 89, will take over the title from her great-great-grandmother Queen Victoria who, according to Buckingham Palace, reigned for exactly 23 226 days, 16 hours and 23 minutes. And in tribute to that achievement, our #FFF this week is that she, along with the rest of the royal family, joined Facebook in 2010, although it is not possible to 'poke' the royal family.

#WeAreNotNotAmused

Sunday #SS (Sore Sunday)

ACCORDING to a heartbreaking Facebook post by environmental conservationist Nick Tredger, poachers shot his black rhino cow and calf this weekend. What makes this all the more sickening is that the poachers reportedly didn't even bother to dehorn the animals, but simply left them for dead. According to the Save The Rhino Foundation website, there are an estimated 5 000 black rhino left in Africa. The carnage facing our animal population has reached unacceptable levels, and people Magazine joins the international calls for swift and effective action to be taken to protect our natural animal heritage before it's too late.

Coco And Chanel-To-Be

APPARENTLY she's having a baby, but looking at the 'bump' placement, we have to wonder where it's been gestating! We see her usual glorious booty, but where's the baby bump? It seems one thing's for certain – Coco's going to get her pre-baby bod back in no time – if she even loses it in the first place! Quite appropriately, the 36-year-old reality star and talk-show host posted this selfie on Labour Day, showing off her supposed 26-week baby tummy, the end result of which is rumoured to be making her debut appearance in December. Coco's husband, Ice-T, has confirmed that the bump-to-be is going to be called Chanel.

BEY & JAY: Crazy In

BY EL BROIDE

THEY'RE Hollywood's richest and most powerful couple and they're still head over heels for each other – and they're not afraid to show the world!

AHH... If there's one celebrity couple that inspires our relationship goals, it's Beyoncé and Jay-Z. The two have kept their relationship alive in a turbulent industry, have a beautiful baby girl together and have invested every part of themselves into making their relationship work. Oh, and holidays in beautiful places don't hurt either! The couple, who have been married for seven years, took some time off and travelled to Sardinia and Capri in Italy with their daughter Blue Ivy and Beyoncé's former Destiny's Child bandmate Kelly Rowland (and their entourage) to enjoy some sun, sand and each other. The two spent a lot of time together walking by the beach and couldn't keep their hands off one other the whole trip! Naturally, the couple wore matching blue outfits to make these images even more incredible! We love the fact that Jay is such a gentleman and treats his woman like gold. The rapper was spotted helping his wife on and off boats, giving her sneaky kisses and enjoying the sun with his family. Naturally, the couple also hired a photographer to capture every moment of their holiday so that the memories created on the trip would last forever. The couple's marriage looks stronger than ever, even just days after insiders claimed Beyoncé has been unhappy for months and that she was finally nearing the point of ending her seven-year marriage. The report revealed that Bey was 'sick of keeping up the ruse of happiness' and she was 'done'. The shocking report adds that this is the exact reason why Beyoncé hasn't done any press

PICS: WWW.EUTEPHOTOAGENCY.COM

interviews for the past 18 months! "It's like she's on lockdown and doesn't want to be asked about her marriage or why she and Jay haven't had another child...But in private, she's already told friends and family that she's moving forward with her life. She'll soon make a public announcement that their marriage is over." How sad! It's also been reported that the couple have not worn their wedding rings in months and that Beyoncé had her tattoo, the Roman numeral IV that signified their wedding date, removed from her ring finger. Jay has always been Beyoncé's biggest fan so we're not entirely sure we believe the divorce rumours floating around. Another source, though, claims that Jay has 'lived the high life and the single life all while he's been with Beyoncé'. "He has an entire world without her. He stays out all night at times, partying with women while Beyoncé's at home." Hmmm... These pictures certainly seem to tell a completely different story! Bey and Jay's marriage looks stronger than ever and it's been reported that the two are already starting to plan for their second child! "They are working on new music and also thinking of having another child," a source reveals. "She is not pregnant right now, but she definitely is getting the bug to give Blue a brother or sister. Their marriage is fine." Blue Ivy looked more adorable than usual on this family holiday so the thought of seeing another little one in this family is exciting! If this is a 'band-aid holiday', as some reports suggest, it definitely seems to be working. Both Bey and Jay are incredibly busy and both own several businesses so we're glad that they're taking some time off to reconnect with family and friends on islands around the world. With a love as strong as theirs, we expect them to have a strong and happy marriage for many more years to come!

Screening

PETER (Levi Miller) is a mischievous 12-year-old boy with an irrepressible rebellious streak, but in the bleak London orphanage where he has lived his whole life those qualities do not exactly fly. Then one incredible night, Peter is whisked away from the orphanage and spirited off to a fantastical world of pirates, warriors and fairies called Neverland. There he finds amazing adventures and fights life-or-death battles while trying to uncover the secret of his mother's identity – who left him at the orphanage years ago – and his rightful place in this magical land. Teamed with the warrior Tiger Lily (Rooney Mara) and a new friend named James Hook (Garrett Hedlund), Peter must defeat the ruthless pirate Blackbeard (Hugh Jackman) to save Neverland and discover his true destiny – to become the hero who will forever be known as Peter Pan.

Join people Magazine for a complimentary screening of the movie Pan on Sunday October 4 at 14h00 at the following cinemas.

F-lipping Hell, Kylie!

KYLIE JENNER'S questionable lips were big news after she revealed she had lip fillers on an episode of KUWTK that aired in May. And now they've pouted their way into our lives once again. Kylie was spotted grabbing a bite to eat with her boyfriend, Tyga after a gym session in Van Nuys, California recently, and even though her body was rocking in her training gear (we mean, look at her abs and legs in the pics below!), it was her larger-than-usual pout that grabbed our attention. We can't help but think she's taking her obsession with lip fillers to the extreme. Be careful Kylie, you wouldn't want to look like Donatella Versace would you? And if you're trying to hide your lips from the paps, girl, maybe try finding a much thicker tree trunk next time!

She'll always be able to apply for work at Cirque du Soleil for a job as a performer. Or even better – Madame Zingara!

DJ Zinhle Confirms AKA Affair

UH-OH! DJ Zinhle has gone and aired her baby daddy's dirty laundry, and we have no doubt AKA isn't happy about her snitching. After recent pics of AKA and Bonang hanging out in Cape Town together went viral, Zinhle took to her blog to confirm they did in fact have an affair. "A week before our daughter was born, I found out about an affair between Kiernan (the father of my child) and Bonang Matheba," she wrote, and added, "I also received confirmation of all rumours through an honest conversation which I had with Kiernan, who confirmed that the affair had been going on for over five months." But AKA has since responded to the post, releasing a statement saying, "As a result of Zinhle's recent blog post, I feel the need to provide clarity on the allegations contained therein. I would've preferred that this could have been dealt with privately. Breakups can be tough and emotionally draining for all involved. I would like to add that myself and Bonang Matheba are not an item and never have been." Bonang has also denied the claims. If you ask us, it sounds all confusing. Regardless though, Zinhle didn't confirm AKA and Bonang are an item, just that they had an affair.

Jon Hamm And Jennifer Westfeldt Split

SAY it ain't so! It's been a brutal few months for celebrity relationships and it seems Jon Hamm and his wife, Jennifer Westfeldt are the latest couple to call it quits. The hunky Mad Men star and his filmmaker girlfriend of 18 years released a statement saying they are parting ways. "With great sadness, we have decided to separate, after 18 years of love and shared history. We will continue to be supportive of each other in every way possible moving forward." The couple were last seen in public on July 22 and starred in the 2011 film, Friends With Kids.

Angie's Theatre Day Out

ANGELINA JOLIE recently took Shiloh, Vivienne, Zahara and Knox to the Apollo Victoria theatre in London's West End, to see Wicked. Casually dressed – with the Maleficent actress looking as chilled as ever – the family enjoyed a day out together, or should we say their cultural excursion for a performance of the beloved musical? And while dad Brad Pitt was no where to be seen when the paparazzi were around, an insider confirms he was in attendance.

GORGEOUS mama Alessandra Ambrosio showed off her sultry body while out with her kids at the Kiwanis Chili Cook-Off recently. The model – dressed in a blue bustier with spaghetti-string straps and a cut-away back attached to a pair of tiny shorts that made the best of her long legs – spent time with her seven-year-old daughter Anja and son Noah, three, in Malibu, California. Kendra Wilkinson, her husband Hank Baskett and their kids – son Hank Jr. and daughter Alijah Mary – were also there to enjoy the day, looking very happy for a family who has faced big issues this past year.

Mariah Hits The Fair

MARIA CAREY might be dating a billionaire these days but she's still just mom to twins Moroccan and Monroe. The trio were seen enjoying the Malibu fair during America's Labour Day afternoon – and the diva was even spotted enjoying the rides herself. Mimi, of course, turned the outing into a very glamorous do in her black tank top, skinny jeans, black stilettos and a flashy diamond necklace.

North, The Prettiest Of Them All

THERE'S no questioning the fact that North West – daughter of Kim Kardashian and Kanye West – is the cutest of all in Hollywood's Kidville. A little diva in the making, she stood out in a crowd with her cute smile and ever-present bling – and of course the A-list attitude! Then again, she's been learning from the best, so what should we expect?

Kendall's Close Shave

EVERY model knows that their legs are their biggest asset, which is why it's important to keep them in tiptop condition. For Kendall Jenner, this means keeping them hair-free. The gorgeous supermodel has been busy rocking the runway at numerous fashion shows at New York Fashion Week but made time for a quick shave. Taking to Instagram, Kendall uploaded a video of herself shaving on the backseat of an SUV, with a razor in one hand and a bottle of water in the other. Now that's what we call cutting it fine!

George Clooney Blasts Trump

IT seems Donald Trump isn't getting the support of any A-list actors for his run up to the 2016 Presidential Election. George Clooney has blasted Donald for his comments on Mexican immigrants, where the Republican frontrunner labelled them 'criminals' and 'rapists'. Speaking at a press conference at the Toronto Film Festival, George said, "Clearly, what he said is idiotic, of course it's idiotic", and added, "Anybody who says such intolerant words as those should be laughed at, and that's pretty much what I think eventually history will do." Home-Grown Heartbreak

BY PEARL MPHUTHI

RELATIONSHIPS in the limelight are never easy, and break-ups are even harder.

CELEBRITY breakups get the population talking. If these loved-up stars couldn't make it work, what are the chances for the rest of us? Take a look at these local celebs whose splits left us shocked!

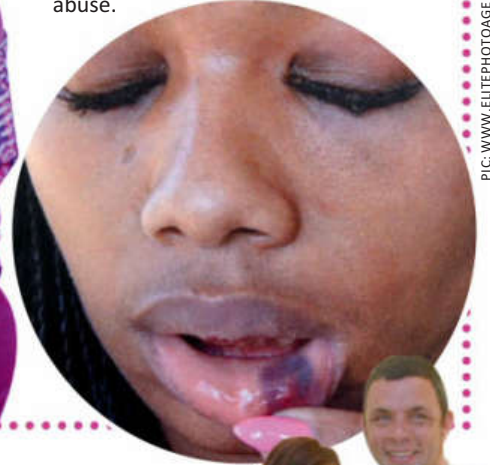

Minnie Dlamini & Itumeleng Khune

TV personality Minnie Dlamini and Kaizer Chiefs goalie Itumeleng Khune were 2014's most talked about relationship. Apparently the flamboyant beauty broke up with the soccer talent because of his wandering eye...

Bonang Matheba & DJ Euphonik

BREAKUP of the decade! An ongoing case of he said/she said. It was unfortunate that this pair had to call it quits. Reportedly the relationship was filled with physical, verbal and emotional abuse.

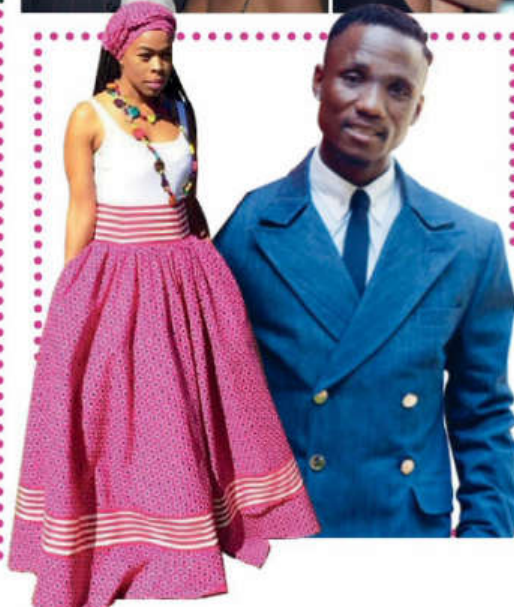

Mark & Loui Fish

THE public divorce between former Bafana Bafana star Mark Fish and former lingerie model Loui Fish was a hectic one. Back in 2012, the famous beauty released a tell-all book Walking In My Choos, which dished a lot of dirt about her past, her ex-husband, and other sportsmen.

Graeme Smith & Morgan Deane

WHO can forget the headline-making breakup between former Proteas captain and his then-wife Morgan Deane? Apparently Graeme publicly announced his divorce and the two are rumoured to be in a custody battle for their two beautiful children.

Teko & Felicia Modise

ANOTHER divorce that made the headlines of all Mzansi's popular magazines! The separation of the reality star and the A-list player was on the tip of everyone's tongues, and was apparently caused by their 'toxic' behaviour.

Victoria Beckham

BY: SUZY MUKENDI

FROM her early days as Posh Spice to her present role as a successful fashion designer, every time Victoria Beckham steps out she looks chic and well put-together. Recently, the 41-year-old was spotted at JFK Airport in New York sporting her own range of fuschia co-ordinates. This is definitely a look that had to try copy; it may not be fuschia, granted, but the softer pale pink works perfectly for everyone and is a great head-start for those that want to try pink for the first time.

Caitlyn Trans

The Entire Fa

IT'S been a rough few months – and even the Kardashians can't keep up anymore!

IT'S no secret that the Kardashians and the Jenners have had their fair share of issues over the years, and while Caitlyn Jenner and ex-wife Kris may have been happily married for many years, their kids didn't always see eye to eye. But with Caitlyn's huge transition this year, and the star now taking over the limelight, it seems the family is being torn, split and left in pieces – pieces which have resulted in the falling out of one of the biggest families in Hollywood.

While the Kardashian kids have been adamant that they have been behind their stepfather's decision to transition into a woman, Caitlyn's sons feel it's not real. "They feel like the Kardashians are faking support for Caitlyn," revealed an insider earlier this year, adding that Burt, 36, Casey, 34, Brandon, 33, and Brody, 31, 'despise the Kardashians'. And it seems 20-year-old Kendall and 18-year-old Kylie are stuck in the middle.

"They have to play both sides," revealed

Brandon Jenner

a friend of Caitlyn's, who explained that things have been just as hard on her. "Bruce hates to see his families fighting," the source said at the time of the transition, adding, "He wants to keep the peace." And as if that's not enough, it seems family members are now reacting in their own strange manner – finding a way to deal with it all, perhaps. While Kris is reportedly hurt and embarrassed by the fact that her husband of 24 years turned into a woman, daughters Kylie and Kendall are struggling with the idea of their dad becoming a woman, too. Turning into quite the wild child over the last couple of months, Kylie seems to be rebelling (or perhaps distracting herself from what's going on around her). As for Kendall, she's still not used to calling her dad 'Caitlyn', say sources, and still refers to Caitlyn as 'he'.

According to friends and family, while Kylie always projects the image of cool, calm and collected in public, the young star often breaks down in tears behind closed doors. "Kylie is a real cool customer in public. She is a lot like her mom [Kris] in that it seems as though nothing phases her at all," says a source. "She's very good at putting herself together and projecting an image of total confidence. She makes it seem like she's the happiest person in the world." But she's not! "The truth is that when the cameras are off and she isn't posting playful Snapchats, Kylie is struggling with all the drama in her life," the insider explains. "She has been through more in her young life than many 18-year-old girls and it can really get to her." Insiders add that she's been left sobbing many times. "Kylie battles bouts of uncontrollable crying and sadness. She was always dependent on Bruce but now everything has changed. She's so happy and supportive for Caitlyn, but it's incredibly difficult."

Kris Jenner is also reportedly feeling threatened by the attention Caitlyn's getting and is not only on a strict diet to ensure she looks better than her ex — who is now strutting her stuff in designer outfits — but she's desperate to change her name back to Kardashian, too.

The momager is ready to fully put her split from Caitlyn behind her and totally re-brand herself, a new report claims. Sources say the 59-year-old is allegedly moving full-steam ahead with legally changing her name! "It's time to dump Jenner and rebrand herself," reveals a source. "Kardashian is the core name associated with the family brand. Kris thinks the name will bring more bang for the buck." Sources add that she's already changed her stationery and letterheads to reflect the change.

In a recent interview, Kris's sister Karen Houghton explained what's really going on behind closed doors. Karen revealed that Kris is 'hurt' and 'upset' by Caitlyn's transition, and has a 'secret pain' — one where she's hiding her true and not-so-friendly feelings for her ex. Karen added, "My sister is a genius at marketing so she's very good at hiding her feelings. Kris doesn't want the world to think her life is falling apart... She talked to our mom about it a lot. I just ask her if she's okay. I don't want to upset her. I pray for her because it's hard."

Still referring to the reality star as Bruce, Karen says "To me he'll always be Bruce, even his voice is still Bruce. We spent every Christmas, Easter and birthday with him and the family. He helped raise my daughter. He is a great man." She also spoke out about Kendall's struggle with the situation. "I don't think Kendall's used to it yet but she's the strongest and she's doing so well in her career. I think she's managing to cope the best," she said.

As for how she, herself, feels about the transition, she said: "We love Bruce so much. He did a very brave thing. If it makes him happy, then it's good." However she did say, "It hasn't been fun for Kris. The whole world has seen this played out, but I think she and Caitlyn will end up as friends. This is something none of us dreamed would happen, but now only time will tell what happens next."

43-Year-Old CAMERON EXPECTING TWINS!

THE actress and her rocker husband are finally starting their family – and they've got more than they bargained for!

BY EL BROIDE

IT took just seven months for Benji Madden and Cameron Diaz to make it official, and now the couple are looking to expand their family.

A new report has emerged revealing Cameron underwent in vitro fertilisation and is expecting twins! The 43-year-old has been wanting children for a long time and is thrilled with the news that she is having two!

Perhaps it's not such a shock, considering Benji is a twin himself — his brother, Joel, is married to former reality star Nicole Richie, and they have children of their own. "When they found out they were expecting twins, Benji and Cam were in shock, but completely overjoyed," an insider said.

Cameron is so elated at the news that she has already started talking about gender. “Although she’s just a few weeks in, Cameron is hoping her babies turn out to be a boy and a girl. She’s excited to start shopping for the nursery.”

There is a bit of a worry surrounding this pregnancy, though, since Cam is at a greater risk for complications, due to her age. "They're being very cautious," the insider stated. "She's very healthy and everything looks great so far. They're hoping for the best."

Benji has experience with children, having often babysat his seven-year-old niece Harlow and five-year-old nephew Sparrow, and can't wait to finally have kids of his own. "He's so protective of her and the babies that it's hard for him to focus on anything else. He just can't wait to be a dad," the source reveals.

Cameron told Benji early on in their relationship that she wanted to have children with him but he had one condition. “She told Benji she really wants a baby and he said, ‘Well, marry me.’ He’s old-fashioned... Marriage was important to him,” the source says.

Cameron has also told her management that she is taking the year off to focus on her pregnancy and the babies. “She has told her team she won’t answer the phone for any amount of money – even though she had received offers for various things. She is adamant that she is not available for anything.” Mazeltov, you two!

Cameron is thrilled with the development, and is adamant that she take time off to focus on the babies.

ROB'S PREPARING For A Comeback

BY ANGELA BEKIARIS

THE reality star is training hard and shedding the kilos.

WE didn't see this one coming but it seems Rob Kardashian is finally on the mend. The reality star-turned Arthur George sock designer has spent over a year behind closed doors battling depression, substance abuse and serious weight gain – and to be honest, we thought this was going to end in disaster.

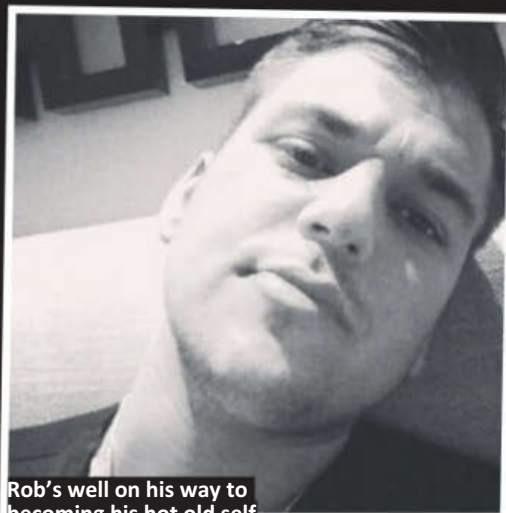

But while family interventions never worked, Rob finally saw the light – and according to reports he’s preparing for a huge comeback. According to sources the star has been working hard on losing weight after packing on 45kg within the space of a year. Insiders say the 28-year-old has already ‘lost more than 8kg’, adding, “Rob has been sticking to the plan Gunnar [Peterson] created for him, and is getting meal delivery from a chef.” Sources add that Rob has also been training hard with sister Kim Kardashian, who hasn’t stopped exercising during her second pregnancy. The pregnant Selfish author recently tweeted about going on ‘the hardest hike ever’ with her brother, who then responded with: “GOOD work gurrrrrrllllllll!”

Preparing for a big comeback, Rob gave followers a glimpse of his slimmed-down physique via Instagram recently. In the selfie, Kris Jenner’s only son looked noticeably thinner, and captioned the image: “Gnight.”

And while he hasn't really stepped out since bailing on Kim's wedding to Kanye West in May 2014 – nor has he appeared on the family reality show Keeping Up With The Kardashians, nor any of the spin-offs – it seems it didn't really take much to get Rob back into shape. His incentive, say insiders, was simple – cash! “He’s not getting paid if he doesn’t film,” explains a source, who adds that Rob has already started filming scenes for Season 11. “He has a $27-million-a-year contract. He realised he couldn’t give up this huge opportunity.”

So much for family support and rehab facilities... All poor Rob needed the whole time was a big, fat cheque!

Rob's well on his way to becoming his hot old self

She's NOT Ditching The Crown!

BY VANESSA PAPAS

RUMOURS that the queen is giving up the throne and passing the crown over to Prince William have been blasted by the royal family as being completely and utterly untrue!

SOME royal rumours are just too juicy to ignore. Like the scandalous claim that Queen Elizabeth II had orchestrated Princess Diana's death to appear to look like an accident. Or the shocking report that Kate Middleton and Prince William were divorcing just days after the birth of their second child. And the latest gossip – that the longest reigning monarch is giving up her throne and will crown the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge as the King and Queen of Britain. Fact or fiction?

What do Bhumibol Adulyadej (king of Thailand), Sir Winston Churchill, John F Kennedy, Tony Blair, Nelson Mandela, Indira Gandhi (prime minister of India) and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini

(supreme leader of Iran) all have in common – apart from the obvious their being world leaders?

They were all outplayed, outwitted and outlasted by Queen Elizabeth II, who recently became one of the world's longest-reigning monarchs. At 89 years old, it seems there's no end in sight to the Queen's rule – having reigned, as of September 9, for 23 226 days – surpassing the reign of her great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria. The exact moment the Queen became the longest-reigning sovereign is unknown. Her father, George VI, passed away in the early hours of February 6, 1952, but his time of death is not known. Overtaking the world's most epic leaders wasn't something the Queen ever aspired to, she said. She was simply the beneficiary of a long life. "Inevitably a long life can pass by many milestones – my own is no exception – but I thank you all and the many others at home and overseas for your touching messages of great kindness," she said. Surprisingly, Elizabeth's son Charles didn't celebrate his mom's milestone day. According to tabloids he instead quietly worked behind closed doors on a special project at Dumfries House, the home he helped save in southern Scotland. Sour grapes? Perhaps. While Elizabeth was just 25 years old when she unexpectedly ascended to the throne, her heir and firstborn son, Prince Charles, is still waiting for his crowning moment...at the ripe age of 66. He's not only losing more hair as the years roll by, but time wearing the crown as well. Prince Charles is presently heir to the British throne. He will not become king until his mother abdicates (gives up the throne), retires or dies. When any of these happen, Prince Charles may abdicate and pass the throne to his eldest son, Prince William, and it has been rumoured that Elizabeth will be stepping down and passing the throne to her grandson, Prince William and his wife Kate Middleton, in April 2016 (following the Queen's

It seems Will and Kate will just have to wait their turn 90th birthday. Reports had claimed Prince Charles and his wife Camilla (who is expected to become queen consort when Charles becomes king) were less than impressed with the idea but eventually understood that 'it's best for the crown to skip a generation, for the sake of keeping the royal family relevant and vital'. However, it turns out that the rumours aren't true after all and that the queen had absolutely no intention of abdicating the throne next year.

Charles and his lady love are still in line

The British monarch is head of the Protestant Church of England so the requirement remains that only Protestants can be in the line of succession. The current line of succession to the British Throne is still Prince Charles, The Prince of Wales, Prince William of Wales, The Duke of Cambridge, 33, Prince George of Cambridge, two, Princess Charlotte of Cambridge, one, Prince Henry of Wales (Harry), 31, Prince Andrew, The Duke of York, 55, Princess Beatrice of York, 28, Princess Eugenie of York, 25, Prince Edward, 51, and James, Viscount Severn, eight. While Prince William is just second on the list – and getting the crown is obviously something both he and Kate want (who wouldn't want to be king, and who wouldn't want to be married to one?), the couple seem to be far more interested in 'playing house' than in the drama of the British monarchy. Kate recently said she plans on having two more children by the time she turns 36 – in just three years' time – and sources close to her have reiterated that the Duchess of Cambridge is completely dedicated to being a mom to son Prince George and daughter Princess Charlotte. There have been many marked similarities in parenting styles between Kate and her late mom-in-law, Princess Diana, who died in a car crash in Paris on August 31, 1997. While Kate delivered her sons at the Lindo Wing of St Mary's Hospital in London, the very same location where the Princess of Wales gave birth to both William and Prince Harry, the parallels don't stop there. "Diana was always very keen on William and Harry knowing the world around them," says Victoria Arbiter, ABC News' royals contributor and daughter of former Queen Elizabeth's press secretary Dickie Arbiter. "She took them to McDonald's, she took them to the movies, they went to theme parks and homeless shelters. Yes, they were born into a very privileged background, but Diana made sure they knew they lived in a privileged background that wasn't normal and knew how other people lived. It's a lesson that Will and Kate have already seemed to take on board. That is how William and Kate are; they are very down-to-earth. Really, we are going to see quite similar mothering from Kate. She is going to be like Diana. She is going to want to be present; she is going to want to take the children to school in the morning. Diana made sure she was on hand for everything she possibly could."

The queen apparently has no plans on giving up the throne anytime soon

Prince Charles: 'Oh I Just Can't Wait To Be King!'

PRINCE CHARLES is the United Kingdom's longest-waiting heir and if his mother dies he will also be oldest to assume the throne. "The idea that he would not be king is not something that has entered his mind," says Catherine Mayer, the author of The Heart Of A King, a controversial book about Charles. "The idea that it would not happen in the normal course of events is alien to him. Prince Charles is ready to reshape the monarch's role when he becomes king and make 'heartfelt interventions' in national life in contrast to the queen's taciturn discretion on public affairs, his allies have said. In signs of an emerging strategy that could risk carrying over the controversy about his alleged meddling in politics into his kingship, individuals close to the heir say he is set to continue to express concerns and ask questions about issues that matter to him, such as the future of farming and the environment, partly because he believes he has a duty to relay public opinion to those in power."

Royal Titbits

- QUEEN ELIZABETH became queen at the age of 25 and her reign has included 12 prime ministers.
- SHE was shot at by a lone gunman while out riding near Buckingham Palace.
- ELIZABETH is head of state for 138-million people.
- ELIZABETH'S marriage to Prince Philip of Greece and Denmark had caused a massive furore across the world. Prince Philip had no financial standing, was foreign-born (though a British subject who had served in the Royal Navy throughout the Second World War), and had sisters who had married German noblemen with Nazi links. Despite the outrage, Elizabeth married him anyway (and received 2 500 wedding gifts from around the world!).
- SHE is the patron of over 600 organisations and charities.
- ONE of Elizabeth's favourite animals are dogs – especially her Pembroke Welsh corgis (her lifelong love of corgis began in 1933 with Dookie, the first corgi owned by her family).
- THE Queen's estimated personal fortune, largely inherited from her family, is about R5.7-billion, according to an analysis by the Bloomberg Billionaires Index. But that's just a mere three percent of the wealth of the richest Briton, Gerald Grosvenor, the Duke of Westminster!

Don't Mess With Pippa

SHE'S not just a pretty face after all! English socialite and author Pippa Middleton was spotted at a race day after her birthday. The 32-year-old took part in what's considered an exhausting 'swimrun' event and was joined by teammates, brother James Middleton, ex-boyfriend James Matthews and old friend Jöns Bartholdson. Pippa put her game face on and was snapped having quite a blast – she was one of 240 competitors who participated in the activities. The younger sister of Kate Middleton is no stranger to sports outings and we reckon that the best part of the event was crossing the finish line. Go Pippa!

EACH week get the lowdown on everything from selfies, social media and skating to surfing, snogging and smoking.

The Friendship CORNER

A FRIEND is more than just someone who is around when life is good. They're supposed to stick around during the bad times, too.

IT was famous talk show host Oprah Winfrey who once said: "Lots of people want to ride with you in the limo, but what you want is someone who will ride the bus with you when the limo breaks down." So true! Everyone needs a special buddy they can turn to – someone who's there to share in the ups and the downs of life. To be there for the happy, silly, goofy times, and to be a shoulder to cry on for the little knocks we all take every now and then.

SOME friendships are built to stand the test of time. Take famous buddies Jennifer Aniston and Courteney Cox, Drew Barrymore and Cameron Diaz, Jimmy Fallon and Justin Timberlake, Taylor Swift and Selena Gomez, George Clooney and Brad Pitt, Jennifer Garner and Jessica Biel, Tobey Maguire and Leonardo DiCaprio, Natalie Portman and Rashida Jones, Matt Damon and Ben Affleck, and last but not least, Keira Knightley and Sienna Miller. Other friendships, sadly, end in the blink of an eye. Sometimes a fight is enough to break two buddies apart, other times life events like moving to another neighbourhood, starting at a new school, or changing hobbies can cause a rift between you and your bestie. Celebs who are longer friends include Gwyneth Paltrow and Madonna (now that's an odd pair to begin with!), Demi Lovato and Miley Cyrus (who turned from friends to frenemies), Paris Hilton and Nicole Richie, and Katy Perry and Rihanna.

TO make a friend you need to be a friend first – so smile and be friendly. Start conversations by asking questions about the other person and showing a real interest in what they have to say. Be a good listener when others talk, and give them compliments (but don't overdo it); be confident in yourself, have a sense of humour and be able to have fun. If you are having friendship concerns or if you are needing to meet new friends it can be helpful to find some other support or help to talk things through with. You might want to consider talking to a person who you know and trust, such as a parent, teacher or your school counsellor.

WE all know friendship is a good thing but sometimes making good friends isn't as easy as pie, especially if you're a little shy or find it hard to talk to new people. Most close friendships don't just happen overnight (although some do!). If you find yourself battling to make friends remember that some people can confuse your shyness for unfriendliness. Other signals that you could be making without even knowing, which could indicate to someone else that you're not keen on being friends, is avoiding eye contact, talking about yourself too much and not being interested when others talk, being negative about things or making fun of people or putting people down.

REMEMBER that keeping friends can be just as difficult as making them. Friendships need love, time, attention and trust if they are to survive. It's easy to get caught up with other things and take your friends for granted. By doing simple things to show you care you can keep building your friendship. Try and make friendship an important priority in your life and set time aside to spend with your friends. Being grateful for the people and things in our lives is one of the most simple ways to achieve a sense of happiness.

You know that old common wisdom, 'actions speak louder than words'? Well, it's true. There are a bunch of different ways you can show a friend you care (without having to spend bucks). Most people love a surprise, especially when that surprise is something that helps them or makes their life a little bit easier. Make a mixed CD of songs they'll enjoy, create a card for them, leave a thoughtful note, give them something of yours that they've always wanted, pack an extra lunch for them at school, let them choose what movie to watch on the weekend, remember their birthday, say sorry when you're wrong and include them when you spend time with your other friends. While one-on-one friends are great, the bigger your friendship circle grows, the better it is. Different friends bring different things to your life, so the more friends, the merrier.

Braai Day In Style

STYLIST: SUZY MUKENDI
PHOTOGRAPHER: TAMIKA MILLER

If there's one thing we absolutely love about a hot day it's throwing a fabulous braai. National Braai Day is around the corner and it's time to gather all your family and friends and enjoy a good afternoon around the fire having fun in the sun. Of course, as with everything in life, you have to give some thought to your fashion! You don't want to look overdressed, but you don't want to look plain either. If you're in need of a little inspiration, this week, with a bit of help from the beautiful and talented Jay Anstey, we'll be showing you what to wear.

TIP

If you have dinner plans or a night out with the girls, then a dress with embellishment or pattern works perfectly for a day-to-night look. All you need is perfume and a pair of heels in your car for a quick add-on.

And speaking of trends and styles that are back with full swing, we can't leave the 'farmer style' unmentioned. In fact, this should be a trend that stays forever! From dungarees to check print, there is so much versatility to create different and fabulous looks. And who better to help us demonstrate a thing or two about men's fashion inspired by life on the farm than the delicious K2 Twins, Alex and Charlie Kotzé?

A Beauty Date With Jay

WE have a one-on-one with Jay Anstey.

THIS week we have a girl-crush on the beautiful Jay Anstey! The multi-talented local actress is known for her former role as Charlie Holmes in SABC 3's Isidingo. In real life Jay is just as laid back and carefree as her character. Her beauty routine is too – she doesn't own lipstick! We love her fresh approach to beauty (not to mention her super-hot boyfriend, Jonathan Boynton-Lee. Yum!).

Tell us about your beauty routine. I use a very minimal number of products daily and my beauty regimen is simple. I use Alpha H almost exclusively. In the morning I use their balancing cleanser, vitamin C serum, eye gel and finally the daily essential moisturiser SPF 30. In the evening it's pretty similar: I alternate between the night cream and (my personal favourite secret beauty weapon) Liquid Gold.

How much do you spend on your skincare products?

I will spend what it takes to keep my skin healthy and glowing. This is the one department I'm willing to splurge on. My products last a long time, so every two months I'll spend round R1 500.

Any tips on what to splurge on?

It's about quality not quantity! It's as simple as that. I don't need to use so much product when what I'm applying to my face is incredible! For skincare I splurge, but for cosmetics I'm a little more relaxed.

GET LEAN LEGS & GLUTES

THE mom of three is 43, and still in enviable shape. Here's how Jennifer Garner keeps her legs and butt red-carpet ready.

LIKE JENNIFER GARNER'S

✱ She's Not Extreme: After years of extreme dieting and exercising for her role in Alias, the mother of three says she is done with 'extreme' training. She focuses on regular eating and exercise to keep herself in shape.

✱ She's 80/20: The star follows the popular 80/20 rule, making an effort to eat plenty of nutritious foods 80 percent of the time, and enjoying more indulgent foods for the other 20. Salads are her go-to healthy meal of choice, while pizza is a firm favourite cheat meal.

✱ She Has A Trainer: Jennifer hits the gym regularly and runs for general fitness, but she recruits a trainer's expertise when it's time to hit the red carpet. Trainers are an excellent way to get the maximum out of your training session, while also ensuring perfect form and safety from injury.

HERE are three moves Jennifer's personal trainer uses to get Jen's legs and butt ready for the red carpet:

High Step Up

STAND in front of an elevated surface, like a sturdy coffee table or bench. Place one foot on the surface and stand up strongly. Pause for a moment then, keeping your balance, lower back down to your starting position. Aim for three sets of eight to 12 reps with each leg.

Runner's Lunge With Side Chop

START with legs hip-width apart and your right arm up in the air. Take a big step back with your left leg and sink into a low runner's lunge. As you rise up, swing your left leg into the air in front of you, at the same time drawing your right elbow down and across to meet it. Return to your starting position. Aim for three sets of eight to 12 reps with each leg.

Full Donkey Kick

POSITION yourself on all fours, with knees under hips and hands under shoulders. Draw one leg into your chest, then extend it as high up into the air behind you as you can, keeping it bent to 90 degrees. Lower back down to your starting position, but don't let your knee touch the ground between reps. Aim for three sets of eight to 12 reps with each leg.

Focus On Flexibility

Jada Goes Riding

WILL SMITH is one lucky man to have this hottie by his side for so many years. Jada Pinkett Smith was spotted out riding recently, and we can see why the actor is still loving his wife, what with her smoking hot body. Dynamite sure does come in small packages!

STRETCHING is a very important part of your workout – both pre- and post-workout. Not only will it help you avoid injuries but it will also allow you to tone and feel great from start to finish. And the best part is you can stretch anywhere, any time. Here are some of the benefits:

- * It improves athletic performance in some activities
- * It decreases the risk of activity-based injuries
- * It can help improve flexibility, and, consequently, range of motion in your joints
- * Stretching also increases blood flow to the muscle

Stephanie Gets Training

STEPHANIE PRATT took some time off for training recently, and was spotted hitting the road in Hollywood, as well as doing some stretches and some yoga and Pilates poses in a nearby park. The star is without a doubt in great shape!

Childhood Cancer: Early Warning Signs

IT'S always better to be safe than sorry.

Supporting Cupcakes Of Hope

CUPCAKES OF HOPE is a non-profit company, established in 2012, with the mission to create awareness of the early warning signs of childhood cancer, and supporting families who have been affected by childhood cancer by raising funds. These funds are used to help with financial burdens like medical and other day-to-day expenses (e.g. transport, food hampers, and school fees). They do all of this through their love of baking cupcakes.

National Cupcake Day: Every September in celebration of Childhood Cancer Awareness month, Cupcakes Of Hope has their main fundraiser, National Cupcake Day 4 Kids With Cancer, where 70 malls around South Africa partake in raising funds. They are a community-driven project and without their volunteers, their Cupcake Angels, they say they would not be a success. To date they have had phenomenal support from the various communities within South Africa. "Our Cupcake Angels show so much love and passion for our cause, our only requirement is that the cupcakes donated are made with love. Become a Cupcake Angel, it is by far the sweetest way to save a life," says Sandy Cipriano, founder of Cupcakes of Hope.

Party Of Hope:

The Party Of Hope is a fun interactive awareness campaign which can be hosted at schools or businesses. "Our aim is to hand out a leaflet with the 'Early Warning Signs of Childhood Cancer' to each child/parent, and hopefully this will help educate parents on what to look out for – early detection can save a child's life," says Michelle Larsen, national co-ordinator for Party Of Hope. "We are also very proud of our info-graphic as it has been updated with the help of Dr Jennifer Geel, a paediatric oncologist from Wits Donald Gordon Medical Centre at the Charlotte Maxeke Hospital. We believe it is the most accurate and relevant info-graphic available in South Africa. My motto to anyone that registers a party is 'Your party – your rules'. Once a party has been registered we send the school or businesses their very own Angel Pack, which includes our personalised cupcake liners, badges and early warning signs leaflets."

Their achievements:

THE funds raised to date have helped more than 350 children as well as 16 other charities. The company also does regular hospital visits, hosts little birthday parties for their warriors and much, much more. "We generally ask families what they need and do our best to assist," they tell us.

Become A Cupcake Angel...

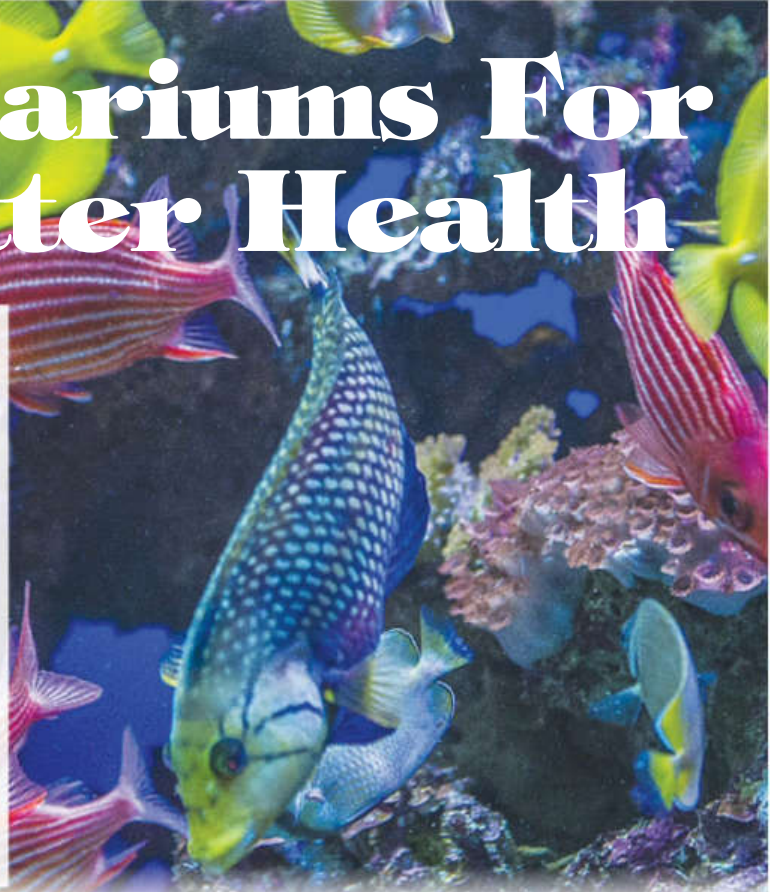

SEPTEMBER is International Childhood Cancer Awareness month, so why not show your support and become a Cupcake Angel? When you get hold of an 'early warning signs of cancer' pamphlet, they urge you to share it with a neighbour or a friend as it might go a long way in helping the next person identify the symptoms in their relatives. Cupcakes 4 Kids With Cancer will be hosting South Africa's fourth National Cupcake Day on September 26, 2015 at 70 malls across the country. This is their main fundraising event so please go and show your support – for only a R10 donation you can receive a delicious cupcake made with love.

Aquariums For Better Health

ACCORDING to a report on All4Women.co.za, visiting an aquarium could improve health and mood. Viewing an aquarium results in noticeable reductions in blood pressure and heart rate, according to research. Studies show that higher numbers of fish helped to hold people's attention for longer and improve their moods. "Fish tanks and displays are often associated with attempts at calming patients in doctors' surgeries and dental waiting rooms. This study has, for the first time, provided robust evidence that 'doses' of exposure to underwater settings could actually have a positive impact on people's wellbeing," said Deborah Cracknell, a PhD Student and lead researcher at the National Marine Aquarium in the UK.

Celebs Dealing With Bipolar

BIPOLAR DISORDER (formerly known as manic depression) affects approximately 10-million Americans, according to the American National Alliance Of Mental Illness – and that includes many famous people.

* Demi Lovato: The actress and singer learned she had bipolar disorder after a stint in rehab. After therapy and treatment, Lovato says she's in a good place. "Now I live well with bipolar disorder. Happiness is a choice. Life is a rollercoaster. You can make the highs as amazing as possible, and you can control how low the lows go."

* Catherine Zeta-Jones: The mother of two revealed in April 2011 that she had sought treatment for bipolar II disorder, which is characterised by episodes of hypomania (less severe highs and irritability) alternating with depression. "After dealing with the stress of the past year, Catherine made the decision to check into a mental health facility for a brief stay," her publicist announced in a statement at the time.

* Jean-Claude Van Damme: While his movie career was successful, Van Damme was divorced four times, charged with spousal abuse, and addicted to cocaine. However, things started to come together after his diagnosis of rapid-cycling bipolar. He told E! Online at the time: "You just have to take a little salt [the drug sodium valproate], and since I'm doing that it's, like, BOOM! In one week, I felt it kick in. All the commotion around me, all the water around me, moving left and right around me, became like a lake."

* Linda Hamilton: The actress struggled with symptoms of bipolar disorder for 20 years, a time she calls the 'lost years', before overcoming it. "Somebody needs to come out and make this okay for people to talk about and get help and take advantage of the resources," she said.

Black Sails: Prepare To Be Blown Away!

Back: Gates, Mr Scott

GET your helping of wild action on the high seas.

DIVE into a debauched paradise teeming with pirates, prostitutes, thieves and fortune seekers in the critically acclaimed swashbuckling adventure series Black Sails on History, DSTv channel 186, every Tuesday at 21h20. Produced by Hollywood's Michael Bay – famed for Transformers and Armageddon – Black Sails, a prequel to Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, is a gritty, adult drama that has taken South African television by storm. You'll be glued to the stunning scenic shots and memorable characters, and the series features a veritable who's-who of South African talent including Sean Cameron Michael (When We Were Black), Louise Barnes (Jozi-H) and Fiona Ramsay (Homeland). We give you the ultimate inside scoop on Black Sails, the story-line, the cast members, meaty nuggets and, of course, irresistibly juicy spoilers.

The Plot

REWIND back to the year 1715 – a golden area tarnished black by the brutal and cut-throat world of piracy. Enter the life of feared Captain Flint and discover the murky depths he'll go to for wealth, prestige and power. Black Sails is an epic TV series about piracy in the 18th century and is very character-driven. The story combines real-life historical figures, events and locations with fictional pirate legends. The series was filmed at Cape Town Film Studios and employed more than 800 extras and crew of which only 30 were not South African.

Mind Boggler!

IRONICALLY, the cast and crew didn't spend a single day filming at sea. Rather, Black Sails was filmed in a studio where they have huge water tanks and the ships are in them. While the cast were always on water they were in a tank and surrounded by a green screen, so they were never out at sea. A machine created the wave effects and the whole ship moves like it's on the ocean.

Taking The Lead

ACCLAIMED British actor Toby Stephens plays Flint – the captain of the pirate ship Walrus, and known throughout the West Indies as being the most feared of all the Golden Age pirates. His charisma masks a deep, simmering rage, and a propensity towards breathtaking violence. In order to hold off the British and Spanish forces he'll make himself ruler of Nassau through any means necessary. "I love the style of Black Sails," says Toby, well-known for his role of Bond villain Gustav Graves in the James Bond film Die Another Day. "For me, the texture of it is really good, it feels more like a really gritty western than your 'yo ho ho and a bottle of rum' stuff. I think Flint is such a fascinating character. What's great is he's not what the audience thinks he is in a way, and that is a very satisfying thing if you're watching. There are all these questions – especially in the first series – about who he is, what he's doing, why is he doing it, what are his motives." The married dad of three says his character is so far removed from who he is in real life – the Toby today. "At 46, I'm beginning not to enjoy the physical side of it. At the start of the series they beat the st out of me until I got into shape. So my appearance isn't vanity. I want to look like I'm useful, I don't want to look like a model." Toby says it was quite frenetic, scary at times, playing Flint. "When you're filming you become this pathetic person who's constantly wanting approbation; I hate that person. It took all my self-discipline not to beg for compliments from people."

Fiona Ramsay

Meaty Nugget:

BLACK SAILS received four nominations for Outstanding Main Title Theme Music, Outstanding Main Title Design, Outstanding Special Visual Effects in a Supporting Role and Outstanding Sound Editing for a Series at the 66th Primetime Creative Arts Emmy Awards. The series won Outstanding Special Visual Effects in a Supporting Role and Outstanding Sound Editing for a Series.

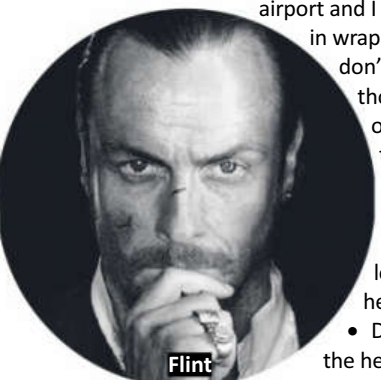

John Silver

Meet The Cast

The Sexy John Silver

HAS John Silver, who insinuates himself into the crew of Captain Flint while secretly possessing the 'schedule', got you swooning? We bring you five fun facts about the gorgeous Aussie actor Luke Arnold who plays the lowly sailor-turned-pirate recruit.

- At the age of 18, Luke worked as an assistant swordmaster on the 2003 film Peter Pan.
- Luke graduate from the Western Australian Academy of Performing Arts. He began his acting career with Australian television, starring in the series McLeod's Daughters, Rush, Rescue: Special Ops, City Homicide, and Steven Spielberg's The Pacific.
- His first feature film role was the lead in Broken Hill – a film about an Australian high school boy with big dreams of leaving the remote outback and becoming a classical musician.
- Luke is an accomplished swordsman and sword fight choreographer.
- A die-hard romantic, Luke will do anything in the name of love. "I've tried writing songs for girls, but they would probably be more impressive if I knew how to sing. Once I had to pick my girlfriend-at-the-time up from the airport and I came dressed in wrapping paper. I don't know what she thought, but the other people at the airport were more impressed with how stupid I was willing to look," he says.

Flint

Despite winning the hearts of women across the globe after famously starring as INXS rock legend and notorious ladies man Michael Hutchence, Luke is still a bachelor and has been single for many years.

Meaty Nugget

WITH the amount of detail that was added to the vessels on Black Sails, it took over 300 workers to build just one ship.

The Beef On Billy Bones

BOATSWAIN of the pirate ship Walrus, Billy is key to smooth operations, and is widely assumed to be the next quartermaster should anything happen to Gates. Billy's belief in the righteousness of the pirate cause will be continually tested as he's drawn deeper and deeper into Flint's plans for the future. Billy is played by British actor Tom Hopper – who has appeared in a number of high profile television series such as Doctor Who and Merlin. The 1.96m tall Tom admits he would never have survived had he been born into a pirate world. "It was brutal and although I enjoy acting in that world, I wouldn't have enjoyed living in it," he laughs. "I loved filming the action stuff, though. It can get pretty violent at times but that's the world these guys lived in. We wanted to show historically what a violent, brutal world it was. Men and women died all the time. It's a world where you're constantly struggling to survive."

Billy Bones

Other Cast Members

- Seductive, cunning, and coolheaded, Max (Jessica Parker Kennedy) works as a prostitute in the brothel. In Eleanor Guthrie, she's found a kindred spirit, a lover, maybe even a saviour, but when her aspirations and Eleanor's begin to conflict, their relationship, and Max's wellbeing,

Max

Clara Paget: Anne Bonny

Toby Schmitz: Jack Rackham

Zach McGowan: Captain Charles Vane

take a dark turn for the worse.

- Captain Charles Vane (Zach McGowan) is the next great pirate captain on New Providence Island, known as much for his vicious temper as his tremendous financial success.
- Jack Rackham (Toby Schmitz) is the quartermaster on the pirate ship Ranger. Rackham is the brains behind Vane's brawn, and in some ways even more dangerous.
- Beautiful but cold-blooded, Anne Bonny (Clara Paget) is Rackham's lover, and Vane's deadliest henchman. Her youthful looks mask a borderline psychopathic personality.
- The beautiful and determined Eleanor Guthrie (Hannah New) is the daughter of Richard Guthrie, the wealthiest black marketer in the Bahamas and the chief fence/supplier for the many pirate crews of New Providence.
- Eleanor Guthrie's right-hand Mr Scott (Hakeem Kae-Kazim) – formerly Richard Guthrie's house slave – has his loyalties put to the test as Eleanor allies herself more closely with Flint.

Eleanor

- The Walrus' Quartermaster, elected representative of the crew's interests and check on the power of the ship's captain, Gates (Mark Ryan) is by far the most senior member of the crew; he is loyal to Flint to a fault and is very much aware he's playing a younger man's game.
- A successful fence and black marketer Richard Guthrie (Sean Cameron Michael) runs a shipping firm out of Harbour Island that acts as a front for his smuggling business.

Five Minutes With Louise Barnes

LOCAL acting sensation Louise Barnes plays the mysterious and captivating Miranda Barlow. Born and bred in KwaZulu-Natal and having graduated at the University of Witwatersrand with an honours degree in Dramatic Art, Louise today lives in Johannesburg with her husband Nick (who also appears in Black Sails, albeit in Season Two) and daughter, and is one of the few SA cast members to have a recurring role in all three seasons of the series. people spoke to Louise to find out what she enjoyed most about being part of Black Sails.

In a nutshell, what is Black Sails all about?

It's 1715, and as Flint fights for the survival of New Providence Island – a debauched paradise teeming with pirates, prostitutes, thieves and fortune seekers – in the wake of threats from British and Spanish forces, he aligns himself with Eleanor Guthrie, daughter of the local kingpin, to hunt the ultimate prize and ensure his people's survival. But standing in the way are rival captains, Eleanor's intrusive father and perhaps the bigger obstacle of all: John Silver (Luke Arnold), a young, fast-talking, authority-flouting sailor recently added to Flint's crew. The story combines real-life historical figures, events and locations with fictional pirate legends.

And it's all filmed locally?

The series was filmed at Cape Town Film Studios and employed more than 800 extras and crew, of which only 30 were not South African.

Black Sails* is a prequel to Robert Louis Stevenson's world-famous novel, Treasure Island. Have you ever read the book? What are your thoughts on the storyline?

I have. It's a fantastic story with wonderfully drawn characters and lots of action and adventure. One can understand why the creators of Black Sails were inspired by it.

When you read the script for Black Sails, what scene were you most excited about?

As it's a series, one only gets an episode at a time, usually about two to three weeks before one films it. Each episode was more exciting than the last and episode eight of Season One is a real cliff-hanger!

What was it about this series that drew you to it?

I loved the strong female characters. The stories of pirates that most of us know are largely devoid of women and Black Sails has four very strong female lead characters as well as many smaller but just as engaging and complex ones.

What was a typical day on set like for you?

Hair and make-up were always a lengthy process so I would get fetched from my apartment in Cape Town at about 04h30 to travel to the set at the Cape Town Film Studios and have two hours of prep to start shooting at 07h00. De-rigging after a 12-hour day would take about an hour and then I travel back to the city and prep words and scenes for the next day! Luckily I didn't have many days as heavy as that.

Tell us a bit about your character?

Miranda Barlow, as she is introduced, is a character that many of the other characters have heard of and speak of but don't actually know. She is connected to Captain Flint and they share a history that slowly gets revealed. It's clear though that she is very torn between her loyalty to Captain Flint and her own need to have a better life than the one she is living on Nassau.

How easy or difficult was getting into character and becoming Miranda Barlow?

I found it surprisingly easy! Some characters are so well written that you just 'click' with them and 'know' them.

What type of viewer do you believe will enjoy this series?

It really has something for everyone. I've heard it described as a political drama, which is an interesting way to look at it. It has action on a grand scale and yet is historically accurate on many levels so really offers a glimpse of life during that time. It's very funny too with some fantastic characters created by lots of South African actors.

What, for you, has been the greatest challenge filming the series?

Wearing a corset and wig for hours at a time was probably the hardest things – so no real challenges!

And your greatest highlights?

Wearing a corset and wigs! It was like being a little girl again playing dress-up.

What was it like for you making the leap to a historical-based TV series?

Funnily enough the first professional job I ever did was an historical-based TV series – Where Angels Tread for SABC – and I've done a few others over the years too. It's always interesting to be able to research specific events in history and portray the people who lived through them.

AND in the midst of it all is SA's very own Louise Barnes, who takes the role of the enigmatic Miranda Barlow.

Are you planning on watching the series when it airs?

Absolutely! I've seen the first season a few times now but I notice something new each time.

Meaty Nugget

BEFORE any of the cast got in front of the camera they were put through an extreme pirate boot camp that involved a strict regimen. It wasn't just the rope work and rigorous exercises that tested them though, they also had to eat a specific and strict diet.

SPOILER ALERT!

READ on if you must, but be forewarned – our spoilers might just spoil your fun!

BILLY BONES is thrown overboard during rough weather. But this happens off-screen, leaving viewers to wonder whether Billy fell by accident or was pushed; or if Flint just didn't lift a hand to save him, seeing Billy was in dire straits...

If you must know the truth, it turns out Billy was pushed – by Flint, to cover his tracks in the Urca de Lima affair. But he isn't a goner... "We wanted to own that Billy is, within this crew, beloved," said executive producer Robert Levine. "He's a character that they all respect and like, and the loss of him matters. So, the fact that he's back has an impact. Both his loss and his return have potential for massive reverberations within the crew, and within Flint's story, and the story at large." Speaking of Flint, his sexual preference has been a topic of contention. While the twist eventually, er, comes out in Season Two, there have been a few hints leading up to it. And so we thought we'd give you the heads up: It turns out the brawly pirate Flint (whose real name is actually James McGraw) is gay. It'll now be clear why he had to leave London (he and his lover were caught), why he was so angry (the love of his life was committed to an institution for their affair), why Miranda is so invested in the future of Nassau (it was her late husband Thomas Hamilton's cause), and what the significance of the book was (it was given from Thomas to Flint as a symbol of their love).

The Whispers stars Lily Rabe, Barry Sloane, Milo Ventimiglia, Derek Webster, Kristen Connolly, Kylie Rogers and Kyle Harrison

WE love to play games with our children. But what happens when someone else starts to play with them too? Someone we don't know. Can't see. Can't hear. In The Whispers, which airs on M-Net every Friday at 19h30, someone or something is manipulating the ones we love most to commit the unthinkable. When children across Washington,

AN unseen force is manipulating our children to act in favour of its cause... And humanity's fate hangs in the balance.

SPOILER ALERT!

DC all start talking with the same imaginary friend named Drill, who persuades them to play dangerous games, the FBI calls in child specialist Claire Bennigan – whose deaf son has been also speaking to Drill, unbeknownst to her – to investigate. Meanwhile, the Defence Department sends Wes Lawrence to the Sahara Desert, where he encounters a strange geological phenomenon. As puzzle pieces come together, creating a frightening picture, humanity must wage a battle against unseen forces if it hopes to survive.

A few episodes in you'll meet a 10-year old boy named Nicholas, who is an outcast at school. Nicholas is helped by Drill while being kicked about by a group of boys. He agrees to follow Drill to an unknown destination. Wes and Lily make some discoveries about Drill, and work with a group of experts to track Drill by following a pattern of 'brownouts' that act like bread crumbs a la Hansel & Gretel. The team corners Drill in an abandoned school building. With nowhere to go, Drill possesses Nicholas. Lena steps in the water and is electrocuted. Wes arrives moments later to find his wife's lifeless body, while Minx weeps outside.

TWO new gripping series – don't miss out!

TWO brand new series set for October are bound to be showstoppers! Last Days Of The Nazis (Thursdays from October 15 at 21h20 on History, DStv channel 186) brings to life a core history topic that takes viewers inside the minds of the Germans themselves and sees the events of the Second World War from their perspective. The series begins in 1945 and tells the story of Hitler's Germany in reverse; from the fall to the rise. By using the best of documentary and drama, which combines factual storytelling with rich character-driven drama, we will be able to go inside the minds of the people who were there. Then, My Crazy Ex (Tuesdays from October 20 at 21h00 on Crime And Investigation, DStv channel 170) tells the twisted tales of love, loss and revenge from the point of view of the poor person on the receiving end. Each episode of the new series focuses on a new story, following it from the moment the couple first meet, through the relationship – however brief – and ultimately to the bitter end. Some stories are Fatal Attraction scary, while others are simply bizarre!

Dear Doc

Dr Karen Koch,
a general
practitioner, answers
your health questions.

DEAR DOC,
I'M an adult A-cup. Are there any ways to naturally increase my cup size? I would prefer to avoid surgery!
Ironing Board

DEAR IRONING BOARD,
BREASTS tend to fluctuate in size throughout your life depending on weight gain and loss, pregnancy and hormonal changes. Admittedly your cup size initially stabilises when you're 18 to 20 years old. Most women find that they do go up a cup size during pregnancy. There are many 'natural' supplements sold for breast enhancement. Many of these contain hormonal analogues with no proven safety. It's probably not a good idea to use these until we have done more research on them. What you can do is some resistance training. Exercises that tone and firm up your chest muscles – muscles beneath your breasts, or your pecs – provide support for the fatty tissue that makes up your breasts; it's a natural breast lift. If you want an instantaneous safe quick fix, buy a decent push-up bra.

DEAR DOC,
WHEN exactly do I need to see a gynaecologist for the first time? I'm 20 years old and not sexually active. I feel a bit awkward about booking an appointment.
Shy

DEAR SHY,
DON'T be shy! Find yourself a friendly and supportive gynae. Gynaecologists are not simply there to do Pap smears and deal with pregnancy – they are sources of advice and support. A gynae will make sure you have a normal menstrual cycle, check for hormonal abnormalities and control any pain associated with your periods. The current guidelines recommend that from the age of 21 every woman (regardless of sexual activity) should have a Pap smear every three to five years. Make a booking – it's no worse than going to the dentist!

DEAR DOC,
IS there any natural way to treat depression? Antidepressants have so many side-effects and I would rather use something less toxic to my body.
Natural High

DEAR NATURAL HIGH,
IF you search the internet you will find thousands of 'natural' remedies for depression. St John's Wort is one of the few herbs which has been found to be helpful. But St John's Wort can interfere with the effectiveness of other medications so it's best to check with your doctor before taking it. Depression is a complex condition so finding a cure is not simple. Antidepressants can help to increase levels of neurotransmitters (brain chemicals) where low levels are causing depression. Counselling is very important to deal with both everyday life with depression as well as to identify and manage your triggers. Like all illnesses, if you have depression you can help to keep it under control by living a healthy lifestyle. Make sure you get enough sleep, exercise and regular healthy meals. Avoid alcohol (and other drugs) as these can strongly affect your mood. Don't be afraid to use antidepressants if you do need them.

DEAR DOC,
IS there a secret recipe to a washboard stomach? My love handles are resisting removal.
Going For A Six

DEAR GOING FOR A SIX,
SADLY, no. The key to perfect abs lies in the kitchen. You can do all the stomach crunches and curls that you want, but unless you change your body fat percentage, nobody will be seeing those ripped stomach muscles. Strength training is excellent for toning and building muscle, but won't result in weight loss. You need to cut down on calories and increase cardio to burn extra fat. You can also streamline your waist by avoiding carbonated drinks and gas-inducing food, which leads to bloating. Some people swear by lymphatic drainage massage to remove stubborn central fluid build up. The bottom line – eat right.

DEAR DOC,
HOW much calcium should I be taking every day? I've heard you can get kidney stones if you overdose.
Them Bones

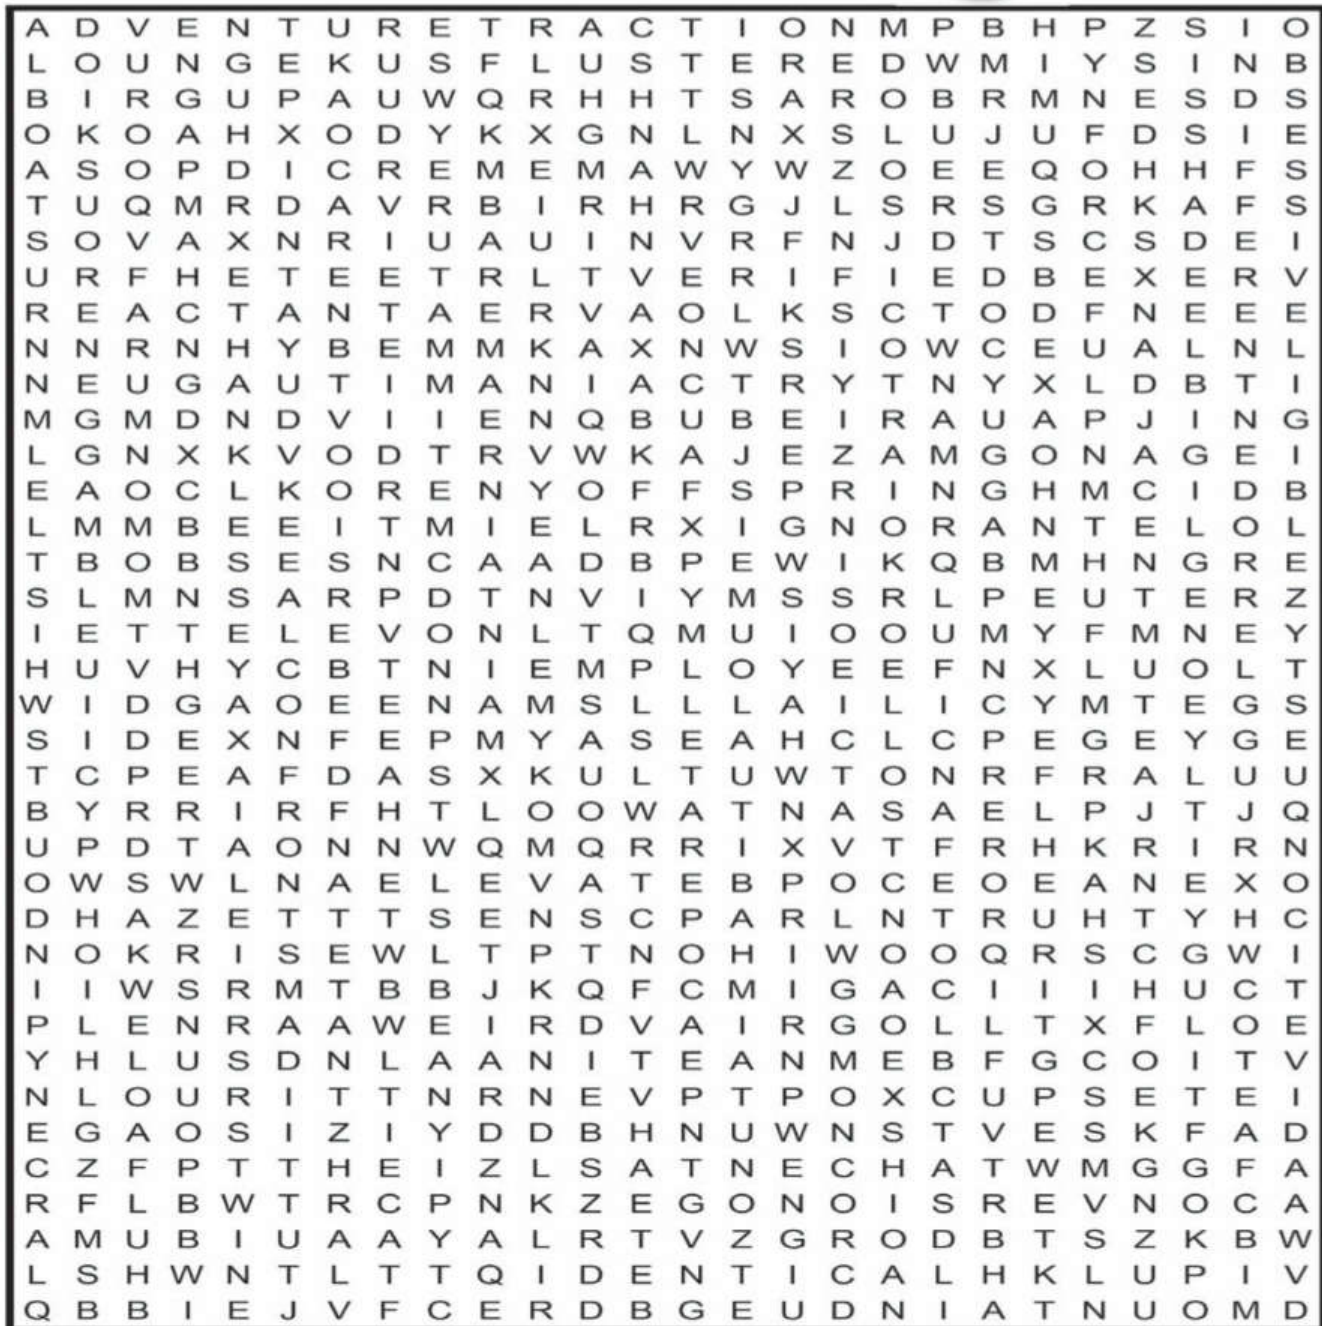

DEAR THEM BONES,
IT depends on your diet. Ideally you should be getting at least 1 000mg of calcium per day. The maximum safe amount of calcium you can take is 2 500mg per day. To put this in perspective, you would need to drink around 1 litre of milk a day to get the calcium you need. Most people need to take some kind of calcium supplement. However, other factors like vitamin D levels and your personal risk of kidney stones are also important. Speak to your doctor before taking supplementation into your own hands.

E-mail any questions to people@cxaton.co.za and write 'Dear Doc' in the subject line.

CODEBREAKER

CODEBREAKERS require inspired guesswork. They are crosswords without clues. Every letter of the alphabet is used (you might find it useful to cross out the letters located by the grid as you find them) and each letter has its own number. In this puzzle '21' has the letter 'M', so a useful start is to insert 'M' in all the boxes that contain the number '21'. Vowels appear at least once in a word but letters such as X and Z are few.

WITHIN this grid are hidden the numbers below. They are found horizontally, vertically, diagonally and back-to-front.

EVEN EXCHANGE

EACH numbered row contains two clues and two answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Kate Winslet's PEACH PIE

Recipe
BY VERA FOURIE

T HIS talented actress gained fame in the blockbuster Titanic, which propelled her into international stardom. She started acting at a very young age, leaving school at an early age to pursue her career, and first appeared in cereal commercials. Kate holds the merit of being the youngest performer ever honoured with four Academy Award nominations – she received her fourth nomination at the age of just 29. She has appeared nude in over 15 movies and has said she feels comfortable in her own skin. Indeed, she spoke out against a magazine which digitally slimmed her down, and openly shows her distaste for ultra-thin stars. It stands to reason, then, that she's not one to turn down a tasty dish, and one of her favourite treats to indulge in is a homemade peach pie. Here's the star's secret recipe!

Name: Kate Elizabeth Winslet

Date Of Birth: October 5, 1975

Place Of Birth: Reading, Berkshire, England

Nicknames: 'English Rose'; 'Corset Kate'

Height: 1.69m

Parents: Roger and Sally Anne, both stage actors

Siblings: Two sisters, Anna and Beth (both actresses), and a brother, Joss.

Children: Boys, Bear Blaze and Joe Alfie and daughter, Mia Honey

Spouses: Ned Rocknroll, Sam Mendes (divorced), Jim Threapleton (divorced)

Ingredients

9 Medium peaches, or 6 cups of sliced Peaches
¾ Cup of sugar, plus additional 1 Tablespoon of sugar
2 Tablespoons of fresh lemon juice
¼ Teaspoon of ground cinnamon
4 Tablespoons tapioca, or sago
1 x Packet of shortcrust pastry

Method

IN a large bowl, combine the peaches, the three-quarter cup of sugar, lemon juice, and cinnamon. Stir in two tablespoons of tapioca or sago to help absorb the juices. Set it aside and give it a stir now and then. Preheat the oven to 200°C, and roll the dough on a lightly floured surface. Take your pie dish, place it softly on the dough and cut out a circle that will be used over the top. Use the remaining dough to line the pie dish. Sprinkle the remaining two tablespoons of tapioca or sago on the bottom crust, and then scoop the peach filling into the pie dish and dot with the remaining one tablespoon of butter. Flip the round dough over the filling and pinch the top and bottom crusts together. Brush the top with the beaten egg, and sprinkle with one tablespoon of sugar. Poke a small hole in the centre of the top crust. Bake for 40 – 45 minutes, or until golden brown, and serve warm.

THE CRAZY

CLUB 808 presents Boity Thulo and Cyprian Ndlovu were fooling around between takes, and they wanted everyone to know about it. The awesome duo took to Instagram and posted this cute shot, captioning it: "Set craziness. Love this team." As you can see, they were joined by a random photobomber, who we assume was one of the behind-the-scenes crew. If you want to be part of the craziness catch Club 808, Fridays at 18h00 on e.tv.

ARTHUR AND KELLY SAY 'I DO'...

WE spotted Mzansi musicians Arthur Mafokate and Kelly Khumalo filming the music video for their latest hit Nguye Lo. The famous pair teased their fans by posting their 'wedding' pictures on both their social pages – don't get excited now. Getting fake hitched was just the concept of the music video, in which Kelly and Arthur embraced an on-screen romance. We must admit, though, we were almost fooled. Almost.

...AND SO DO MDUDUZI AND TEBOGO!

FAKE love is in the air! Like Arthur and Kelly, local actors Mduduzi Mabaso and Tebogo Khale, who both star on popular e.tv soapie Rhythm City, also tied the knot, which will be shown to millions of viewers watching at home. The on-screen couple, who star as Suffocate and Puleng, exchanged their vows in front of their on-screen friends and family. Uh-oh – how long can we expect this fake marital bliss to last? Tune in to Rhythm City, weekdays at 18:30 on e.tv to see what happens next.

Christopher Jaftha Realises Top Billing Dream

PRESENTER SEARCH ON 3 saw Jade Hubner, Danilo Acquisto and Zoë Brown become presenters on Top Billing, Afternoon Express and Expresso respectively, however, there were only these three spots for the taking, and the country was up in arms when fan favourite Christopher Jaftha only made the top five and saw his presenting dream shattered before his very eyes. Luckily for us, the folks at Top Billing realised how much of an asset he would be to the team anyway, and have asked him to join! "He captured both ours and the nation's hearts during Presenter Search On 3 and it is with great excitement that we welcome the incredibly hunky Christopher Jaftha to the Top Billing family," was the announcement made on the show's Facebook page. Khanya Siyengo, another contestant on Presenter Search On 3, has also been given a gig: He'll be presenting the second season of Win A Home!

Kourtney Looking Back-Up Scott-Free House

IT'S been a good few weeks since Kourtney Kardashian

left her boyfriend Scott Disick and the reality star is looking for a new house – which will give her the option to 'cement her decision to leave her troubled partner and truly start afresh' if things between her and her bad boy ex don't work out. An insider revealed that 'up until now, everyone thought Scott was going to slowly worm his way back into her life, but this seems to be the first real sign she's determined to get on with her life without him. Uh-oh. Kourtney moved into her R140-million Calabasas mansion back in January 2014, but don't expect her to move too far away, as Kylie and Khloé live down the street and she wants to remain close to her family.

Baby #3 For Christina?

CHRISTINA AGUILERA was quoted saying that having kids 'truly is what life is about', and although she already has two (seven-year-old Max and two-year-old Summer Rain) it has been revealed that she, along with fiancé Matt Rutler, are trying for another child together. The Voice judge has reportedly already stopped drinking alcohol and is even taking prenatal vitamins. Christina and Matt, who are also in the midst of planning their wedding, don't mind if Christina needs to get a bigger wedding dress and walk down the aisle with a bun in the oven. Christina has already made two beautiful children and we can't wait to meet her third sometime soon!

TED ALLEN hosts as chefs compete and turn baskets of mystery ingredients into a three-course meal on Chopped. Who will be this episode's victor and how will they turn their ingredients into masterpieces?

Kim Richards Dodges Jail

KIM RICHARDS sure has been in a lot of trouble lately. After a recent night out at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Kim found herself on the wrong side of the law and was arrested for disorderly conduct. Since then, the Real Housewives Of Beverly Hills star was involuntary hospitalised and placed under the 5150 hold (the same one Britney was under back in 2007) in order to get her life back on track. Now it seems that Kim won't face any jailtime for her actions that night. "The prosecutors offered Kim, who wasn't in court, a deal that includes probation for three years, attending 52 AA meetings and 30 days of community labour – and she can't be caught near the Beverly Hills Hotel." However, the plea deal is not 100 percent complete as 'there's a glitch with the requested 30 days of community labour'. Her attorney says she suffers from a foot injury and cannot do labour and would rather do community service, insiders reveal. Kim will have to get a note from her doctor stating that she is unfit to do community labour before her future is decided.

Off The Record With...

Van T

WE chat to musicians making waves in the SA music scene!

BY EL BROIDE

SHE may be a newbie on the local music scene but Van T already has the country talking about her! Her new single We're Still Running is getting quite the following and her sound is something fresh. El caught up with her to discuss her love of music, her new album and the future.

Where did your love of music start?

I've always loved music. Whether it was dancing around the house, singing in the shower or trying to learn how to make it, music has always been a form of escape and time out of mind for me.

How did you go about pursuing music as a career?

I would never have thought that music was something that would consume so much of my time, but when I started singing at shows and in a band for the first time five years ago it all sort of spiralled from there. Something about performing live and being captivated by creating various sounds hooked me. It feels almost as though music itself drew me in.

You've just released We're Still Running. What inspired the track?

The track is the mid-point on the album and comes from a phase of illusion I was stuck in. The journey of the album is from a space of darkness to light and this song represents the breaking point or the turn around. But I'd rather the listeners draw their own meaning.

Which track off the new album means the most to you?

A very tough one to answer, as each song comes from a very raw, honest place. But I think as far as the journey goes, Trouvez Moi is most relevant for me.

What makes you different from the other artists?

I'm not sure. I haven't been very observant or intentionally trying to do something because it's different from other artists. I've just been trying to stay true to what exactly it is I want to create.

What do you want your listeners to take away when listening to the album?

I'd like them to feel like they've been taken on journey. But really I just want them to feel or relate to the music whether it's to one song or the album as a whole.

You've been playing overseas recently. How do you prepare yourself before the show? Do you have any rituals?

Every show is different depending on how much time I have before, but I guess a silly thing I feel like I have to do before I play is take a time-out somewhere and jump or shake around; sometimes some stretching or just dancing in the bathroom and then standing to breathe. I like feeling as relaxed as possible.

What can we expect from you in the next few months?

I'll be travelling for the next few months, which for me is very exciting – news places to play and people to meet. I'm seeing where the album will go and will be bringing out the first music video for a song very soon while I'm on the road. It's music like this that can change the world.

Ludaversal Ludacris

AMERICAN rapper Ludacris has been hard at work filming movies such as the incredibly popular Furious 7, but he managed to find some studio time and has finally released his eighth studio album, Ludaversal. As with many hip-hop albums, Ludaversal is an incredibly honest album and sees the rapper explore many aspects of his life. Lyrically, it's great and each track shows us a different side to Ludacris. Overall, though, nothing really stands out on this. It's incredibly simple and Ludacris doesn't necessarily think out the box. The production on the record is basic, which was rather disappointing as well.

El's Favourite Track: Grass Is Always Greener

Chase The Sun Greg Holden

YOU may have not heard of Greg Holden but that's going to change soon. The British singer has just dropped his new album, one which sees him explore every aspect of his life. And he does it beautifully. The one thing you can count on with this record is the fantastic lyrical content. Greg's music puts us in mind of something Mumford & Sons might release. Greg delves deep into hardships he's encountered, such as his sexuality, and his track Boys In The Streets, in which he discusses his father's disapproval of his gay relationships, has had celebrities around the world in awe of his talent and the fact that he has made his negative experience something positive for so many.

El's Favourite Track: Boys In The Street

Dreams Never Die DreamTeam

DURBAN trio DreamTeam have just dropped their brand new album after their smash-hit single What's Your Name blew up the local airwaves. Their music is a gentle mix of house, R&B and hip-hop and has an incredibly soulful sound to it. While it's bound to get people up on their feet, many of the tracks on the record are plain and don't really push any boundaries. The tracks are written nicely and they've each got a catchy beat of their own, but we believe these guys have way more potential.

El's Favourite Track: What's Your Name (Feat. NaakMusiQ & Donald)

Be Still Our Beating Up Close And Personal

THE famous heartthrob stars as Cole Carter in
We Are Your Friends.

That's okay, Zac. You let those tears flow. As Queen B said, 'pretty hurts'

Interview With Zac Efron

HOW do you ensure that a movie project is an absolute knock-out – even before you start filming? Why, you cast Zac Efron, of course! And so another feast for the eyes is born: We Are Your Friends sees the painfully beautiful Zac take on the role of Cole Carter, an aspiring DJ trying to break through in Los Angeles' vibrant dance music scene. Zac chats to people about his role.

What hooked you in for this role?

Initially it was my talk with Max Joseph, the director. The story that Max wanted to tell was really about best friends and about a character that is trying to find himself.

When you play a character like Cole do you have to find a part of him that you can relate to and identify with?

Absolutely! Personally, I think that's the first thing I look for. I have to relate to the character first and then I try and learn the skills afterwards. I had to understand Cole before I would sign on to a movie about a DJ. I related more to his life struggle and his friendships – that's what brought me in, 100 percent.

Cole's at a pivotal point in his life – would you say that's the same for most people in their early 20s?

Yes it is. Now more than ever our generation faces it in a different way. Every person is unique, but our 20s are becoming so stressful and there are so many important choices to make and that's also the time when you are discovering who you are.

How did you prepare for the film in terms of the music? Did you get a rig together?

Because that all needed to feel authentic, the way you handled the sound system...

Yeah, Cole is a DJ and I wanted to do that as best as I could, so I bought a couple of decks and immediately set them up in my house and I had a great mentor, his DJ name is Them Jeans – he's awesome.

There's a great scene where Cole is playing a summer festival. Where did you film that and what was that like, playing in front of all those people?

We actually threw a legit festival. We had several great artists come out and play. It was in LA and we just needed it to be a real gig. I can't remember the exact location, but we didn't make anyone pay [laughs] – we just invited everyone to a free music festival.

You've made a lot of movies and each one is a different experience, but try and sum up what it was like to work on this one.

It was exciting and it was experimental and it felt very raw and real. And there was something authentic about it too.

SPECTACLES and a box of toys give Okkie a headache, and Steve's day kicks off with big news. Tertius tries to put things in perspective, and both Ilse and Jana give Ivanka a reality check. Karli feels torn between her brothers, while a resignation and a sick child might be too much to handle for one day. Okkie thinks he might have a solution to his problem, and Daleen tries to comfort a patient's parent. A discussion about money ends in a huge fight, and Ivanka gives Wimpie some of her products. A magnifying glass and yoga seems to be two very different answers to the same question, while Tertius has no idea how to handle the crisis at hand. Ivanka tries to salvage a situation, and Daleen gets more than she bargained for. Bronwyn thinks she hears someone in the house, and a nurse gets an honest answer. When the worst happens, there is no turning back for anyone. Zeldine doesn't seem to want to take her leave, and Pippa is worried about what the whole truth could do to a friendship. Morné shares his troubles with a confidant, and an allergy is out of control. Daleen makes a very big decision.

Berry Impressive!

THIS tiny hamster was caught hanging on a branch and tucking into a juicy bunch of fresh blackberries. These snaps were taken by Austrian student Julian Ghahreman Rad, who managed to capture the wild rodent treating itself while strolling around a cemetery in Vienna. The greedy animal then furiously stuffed his chubby cheeks with all the blackberries he could fit in, all the while hanging from the end of the bush. "He was really wild about the berries and he was climbing all the way up on the branch until he had the last berry, so he wasn't resting until there was no berries left on the branch," he said.

Fire Up The Engines

MEET Pascal Prokop, a European man who drives a 1990 Volvo 240 station wagon, which he has, uh, 'improved' with the addition of a real wood-burning stove. He's even added a chimney to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning from being a problem. Temperatures across Europe have been dropping steadily recently, so Prokop came up with the ultimate heating solution. He simply removed the passenger seat in the Volvo and replaced it with an oven – the perfect passenger!

Tricky Fingers

ARTIST Natalie Nakles, from the United States, recently completed this freaky hand make-up using only pens and markers. Snaps of her hand against a black background give her work a particularly creepy effect. Somehow it looks both cartoony and totally real at the same time. You can see more of Nakles' hand art on her Instagram and Facebook page.

Real Life

EVER

BY VANESSA PAPAS

THE tale of Cholita has a heart-wrenching beginning but a storybook ending.

SHE lost her claws, her teeth and most of her fur, but this marvel of a bear, who suffered years of abuse and neglect in a circus, never lost her will to live.

The elderly bear named Cholita was snatched from the rainforest when she was just a baby, and was rescued many years later by Animal Defenders International (ADI) and relocated in an epic three-day journey over the Andes to a specially built habitat in the Amazon. Now an urgent appeal has gone viral to save three more ex-circus bears and return them to their rightful home.

Cholita, like thousands of other wild animals exploited in circuses around the world, suffered indescribable maltreatment. The spectacled bear – an endangered species native to South America – was kept illegally in a circus in north west Peru. Locked up in a tiny cage measuring just 1.5m by 1.5m, she was forced to perform tricks. Her toes were brutally cut down to stumps to remove her front claws and her teeth were deliberately broken off, leaving her defenceless. Cholita's wretched life of suffering left her with severe hair loss, or alopecia. While she should have had thick, black fur, she is almost completely bald.

ADI came across Cholita earlier this year. It's believed the bear was stolen as a baby from the wild more than 25 years ago and her mother likely killed. Her idyllic home in the Peruvian rainforest was replaced by the Big Top, and she lived most of her life in the circus. The Peru authorities eventually confiscated her and placed her in a zoo until she could be found a permanent home, but no suitable dwelling was located, and her health continued to deteriorate. After hearing about the bear's plight, ADI stepped in to help and launched an urgent appeal.

"Cholita was rescued as part of Operation 'Spirit Of Freedom', an ADI mission in collaboration with Peru's authorities to enforce their law on wild animal circuses, and raid circuses all over the country in the biggest operation of its kind," explains Animal Defenders International president Jan Creamer. "Nearly 100 animals have been saved from circuses and the illegal wildlife trade. Our work on this issue in Peru and Colombia began back in 2007, when ADI launched its 'Stop Circus Suffering' campaign across Latin America. Over many months our rescue team has travelled all over Peru to track down the circuses; built a temporary rescue centre from scratch as well as jungle habitats for our rescued monkeys, coatis and kinkajous; provided logistical support to the authorities so the animals could be seized; and crossed the Andes four times during 35-hour journeys with our precious cargoes of animals."

Jan explains when he and his team first met Cholita, the vivid scars of her abusive circus life were clear to see. She was also suffering from arthritis and breathing problems. "Considering her age and her health problems we knew that with Cholita, time was of the essence," says Jan. "She was taken to the ADI Spirit Of Freedom rescue centre near Lima, Peru, and received around-the-clock care, a more natural, appropriate diet, veterinary treatment, a pool to bathe in and hanging fruits and toys to entertain her. The ultimate goal, however, was to build a new home for her at the Ecological Reserve on the edge of the Tambopata reserve in the Amazon Cloud Forest – the natural habitat for spectacled bears. With our eye firmly on this goal we launched a worldwide campaign to raise enough funds to build Cholita her home. Thanks to an overwhelming public response, the home is now complete – with bathing pool and cave. The lush, natural jungle habitat was constructed by a team from ADI, Taricaya and Projects Abroad volunteers."

Cholita's new home – the Taricaya Ecological Reserve – is a 476-hectare nature reserve on the banks of the Madre de Dios River, adjacent to the Tambopata National Reserve area. Since 2004, it has been owned by Projects Abroad, which runs various environmental conservation projects there. The main aim of these projects is to restore the reserve's biodiversity from human disturbances in the past. The reserve is now considered a wildlife hotspot, recording extraordinary species figures. Some of the species that can be easily seen in this area include brown capuchin monkeys, Bolivian squirrel monkeys, mealy parrots, white-fronted toucans, spectacled caimans and yellow-spotted Amazon river turtles. Taricaya's animal rescue centre is the first centre of its kind in Peru. Here, staff look after wild animals that have been confiscated by the Peruvian government to prevent their sale on the illegal pet market. When the animals have fully recovered, they are released back into their natural habitat. The centre has also recently started a captive breeding programme and successfully bred a baby tapir in 2012.

Earlier this month, ADI set out on the 1 500km journey across the Andes to take Cholita home to the rainforest. Travelling on the convoy and also headed for new homes were Mufasa the puma, who was rescued from living on a pick-up truck in a circus, James the military macaw, woolly monkeys Rojas, Joan and Diego, and spider monkeys Pepe-Lucho and Lily, who were rescued from illegal wildlife trafficking. A convoy of trucks and cars laden with a dozen bales of hay, food, water and veterinary supplies including two oxygen tanks, left Lima on September 2 for the three-day drive.

"Cholita and the others snuggled into blankets and thick straw beds, and their cages and crates were covered to guard against the mountain cold," says Jan. "Due to concerns about elderly Cholita's breathing issues, ADI fitted out Cholita's cage with an oxygen tent. As the convoy climbed to high altitudes, Cholita's cage was flooded with oxygen-rich air to ensure she did not become distressed. Cholita built a huge den in her travel cage from four bales of straw and buried herself there for most of the journey. After three days of travel, stopping only for food and water, Cholita, Mufasa, the monkeys and parrot all arrived safely at Puerto Maldonado for the final leg of the journey by boat down the Madre de Dios river in the Amazon basin. On arrival at Taricaya, Cholita found herself in the forest, hearing all the sounds she hadn't heard for a lifetime, smelling the earth, and touching the leaves and the trees. The joy of their new environment was clear for Mufasa, Rojas, Joan, Diego, Pepe-Lucho, Lily and James." With Cholita relocated to her new jungle home, ADI has turned its attention to finding her some friends and there are three more spectacled bears who are in urgent need of a new life in the jungle – Lucho, Sabina and Dominga, who has also lost all her fur. ADI must act fast to save them and has launched an urgent appeal to build a safe haven for the three bears and care for them for life. It is hoped they will be companions for Cholita, who has been isolated from her own kind since her mother was likely killed when she was snatched from the wild.

Testimonial

After 6 years of suffering, we are now happily married. For 6 years I lived in an abusive marriage. But after reading & listening to various testimonials about Mama Jane in a magazine & on radio, I visited her, paid her R200 for special prayers. I was shocked when she told me accurately all my past & present problems revealed that my husband was involved in a relationship with another lady. She showed me the lady "live in a mirror". Mama Jane helped to separated that lady from my husband, she also made my enemies & in-laws come and confess all the bad things they have done to my family. Mama Jane performed a special prayer to bind my marriage, today we are happy together. I highly recommend her to those suffering a similar fate as mine.

MY MARRIAGE &
FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

6 Years ago my life was a mess.

My husband had left me and my children were always sick. Luckily I saw a Testimony on the local TV station about prayers offered by Mama Fina. When they prayed for a divorced lady who united with her ex husband after nine years of divorce and he was also saved from drugs. I paid R200 for consultation with Mama Fina. They used the mirror and showed me the faces of the people who were trying to pull me down. I was given special ring to fix my love/financial problems. Within 3 days my husband returned, now I am happily married. I was promoted at work. I recommend them to anyone who has marriage, financial problems & unfinished jobs. Do you want to give birth and feeling helpless, heartbroken & financially miserable?

UNDERDOGS NO MORE!

HELPING young lives...one dog at a time!

Has Heart

BY VANESSA PAPAS

EVERY week we bring you heartwarming stories of ordinary people who've overcome extraordinary circumstances, and offer readers the chance to pay it forward.

These children have all benefited from the project

THEY'RE the dark horses. The underdogs. The ones no one would ever have thought would rise from the ashes. But these children, who have struggled with various behavioural or social issues, have turned a page in their life with the help of some four-legged friends who themselves have faced hardships.

The Underdog Project, founded in March 2011, is a non-profit organisation based in Hout Bay, Western Cape, a life-skills and outreach organisation for at-risk teenagers and shelter dogs who have been abandoned, abused and neglected. From positive reinforcement dog training to practical life skills advice, the project runs classes aimed to engage, motivate and inspire teenagers to re-orientate their lives and find their feet in the world. Part of this process involves helping their shelter dogs find new homes.

"The project is all about inspiring, empowering and engaging with at-risk youths through human-animal interactions, including animal assisted therapy and animal assisted activities," explains Jenna da Silva Pinto, founder and director the project. "Our programmes combine life skills workshops with dog handling activities that not only assist teenagers to overcome social, emotional and/or behavioural problems, but also help the homeless dogs that we work with by reducing kennel stress and teaching essential skills necessary for rehabilitation and re-homing." Jenna says when you examine the drop-out rate of pupils in South Africa's school system, you begin to realise that our country has a very serious problem on our hands.

PAY IT FORWARD

IF you don't love dogs, do it for the kids. If you don't love kids, do it for the dogs. You can support the project by visiting their online shop and buying wrapping paper, T-shirts and postcard sets, as well as by donating funds, volunteering or doing your internship with the project, or welcoming one of the gorgeous underdogs into your life. For a list with photos of dogs that need homes, log onto www.underdogproject.org/underdogs.

More children may be enrolling, but fewer are finishing their schooling. For many teens, The Underdog Project is their last chance of staying on track. The team behind the project is made up of volunteers – some full-time and others part-time, working behind the scenes to ensure children and dogs reach their full potential. The organisation also welcomes students who wish to do internships in an animal-assisted therapy environment.

"Over the years we have had a difficult bunch of kids who all struggled with various behavioural issues," says volunteer Ciara Louw. "In the first session, there was one kid who really acted up. He stole from the classroom, refused to partake in the life skills exercises, and was confrontational and challenging. Because we believe in positive affirmation, we took a gentle approach, thanking and rewarding him when he did something helpful, thoughtful or in line with the group; and not giving negative attention when he looked for it but inviting him to sit out if he needed space. After four sessions, our patience was rewarded. He was the only kid who came back after they went to wash their hands and said to one of our volunteers: 'Miss, I would like to help you pack up'. From then on, he was a star, helping to set up and pack away the dog training apparatus. He was the first to volunteer and by far the most thoughtful and helpful in the group."

Ciara goes on to talk about another programme, where there was a boy who was a selective mute. "He was able to speak but didn't because he was so traumatised from a lifetime of abuse and mistreatment by adults," she explains. "At the start of the programme, he paired up with a lively small dog called Charlie who had never done any training and didn't know even basic commands. The trouble was this boy wouldn't speak, so we could demonstrate to him but, when he tried on his own just using body language, Charlie was easily distracted and confused about what he wanted – until one magic afternoon. He led Charlie off to one side, away from the adults and other kids, and one of the volunteers looked up just in time to hear him say 'sit' to Charlie, who obliged by giving full attention and promptly planting herself down. It was one of those moments that make it so worthwhile – a boy who simply can't trust people could risk being vulnerable with this happy waggy little dog." There are many more heartwarming stories out of The Underdog Project, and we all love a great story about children bettering themselves, and how dogs are doing their part to make a difference!

All the dogs at the project have started out life on the wrong paw. They've been abandoned, abused and neglected. Some have spent their lives on the streets with nowhere to call home. Others once had a place to call home until tragedy left them alone. Every day underdogs spend their beautiful lives behind bars with little hope of ever getting out. The Underdog Project selects these special dogs to join their programme and teaches them a few important skills that could help them to get adopted. By you!

The Underdog Project uses animal-assisted activities to inspire and educate at-risk teens from disadvantaged backgrounds

Real Life Married To A Monster

MOM-OF-FOUR reveals: "My dream husband was leading a terrifying double life as a serial rapist."

As a beautiful mother of four, married to her childhood sweetheart, Kari Keith seemingly had a picture perfect life. Her husband of 15 years, Lonnie, was a hardworking hands-on dad, who doted on his family. But in January 2013, Kari's dream life was blown apart in the most horrifying way, when police revealed her kind, loving husband was in fact leading a twisted double life as a serial rapist. For, while Kari had been at home raising their children – Anthony, 17, Rylie, 14, Maddy, 13 and Logan, five – her depraved husband had been the evil pervert responsible for a string of brutal rapes in their home town. Now she reveals her unimaginable story and tells how two years on she is still picking up the pieces of her shattered life. With her former husband behind bars, she is on the brink of losing their family home and has been forced to file for bankruptcy. Yet reveals how she refuses to be consumed by hate and grief and is determined to be the best mom she can be.

"One minute you have the perfect life, with a husband who loves you, adores his kids and is committed to providing for his family every way he can. But the next you are being told he is a monster who has preyed on young women not that much older than your own daughters," says the 35-year-old. "Words cannot describe how devastating that is to deal with." The personal fallout for Kari has been devastating. "I have lost my best friend, the kids have lost their dad and now we are on the brink of losing our home," she says, adding, "It doesn't get much more catastrophic than that. Every day I have to deal with the shame of being married to a rapist and there are many very dark days." But Kari admits she is working on rebuilding her life with her family. "I refuse to be consumed by hate and anger and today have learnt to forgive Lonnie; otherwise what he did would ruin our lives too. Now I focus on our kids and am determined to be the best mom I can be."

It was on January 26, 2013 that Kari's life was ripped apart, when police knocked on the door of her home in California. After pulling over her husband, who worked as a physician's assistant in a local hospital, for running a red light, they had grown suspicious after a search of his car revealed handcuffs, stun guns, zip ties, syringes and latex gloves. Sitting Kari down they told her they believed he was the rapist responsible for a string of attacks on students in their town.

Lonnie never came home again and in September 2014 pleaded guilty to kidnapping three girls and raping one of them. As part of a plea-deal he was sentenced to 26 years in jail and will be eligible for parole after 20. Kari says, "I thought the police were going to tell me Lonnie had been hurt in a car crash. But instead they told me the man I had spent every night lying in bed with was a rapist." At first Lonnie denied it, but when presented with all the evidence by the police, deep down Kari says she knew it was true. "He had been coming home late and I had once found stockings, zip ties and syringes in a bag behind the dryer. But he had told me the syringes were from work, the stockings were for me and the zip ties were for the roses, and back then I believed him. At worst I thought he might have been having an affair. But suddenly I saw his lies for what they were."

Telling the kids what Lonnie had done was one of the hardest things Kari has ever had to do. "The kids idolised their dad – he was their hero," says Kari. "He coached the girls' softball team, loved to read them bedtime stories and was involved in every aspect of their lives. Everyone loved him. We went on vacation to Disneyland and made a million happy memories together. So to tell them he was in prison and unlikely to be coming home was tough," she recalls.

Kari and daughters Rylie (L) and Maddy (R)

"I sat them down and said, 'Dad has been accused of hurting women and may not be home for a very long time.' I tried to stay composed so as not to frighten them, but I was dying inside." Kari says she never used the word rape and still hasn't to this day.

"Instead I reiterated that no matter what he had done, he loved them and always would and nothing would change. I told them just because he had done awful things, didn't mean they would grow up to be bad. We didn't cry in front of each other. I think we were all too much in shock, but I hugged them and told them we were going to be okay."

As it turns out, though, Kari's emotional strength was waning. "Away from the kids I cried a river of tears and the girls have since admitted they would go in the shower to sob, so I wouldn't hear them. Nobody wanted to talk about it, it was like the elephant in the room."

Kari and the kids went to counselling, but she tells how in the immediate months following her husband's arrest, she sank into a deep despair. "I wondered how on earth I was going to cope raising the kids on my own," Kari says, adding, "And for a long time I blamed myself, thinking that maybe if I had been a better wife, talked to him more, then he wouldn't have felt the need to do what he did. It was irrational, but that's what went through my mind."

Kari had been a stay-at-home mom and Lonnie was the breadwinner before his arrest. "And suddenly we went from that to having no money coming in at all. I often thought it would have been easier if he had just died, as then we would have at least had his life insurance money, or, if he had walked out, alimony. But our community was great and after he was arrested many people brought us food and gifts and cards. But life was still unimaginably hard."

Kari and Lonnie in 2012

Dealing with the shame is what Kari found the hardest. "I was so anxious and still today take antidepressants to deal with my anxiety. I felt overwhelming shame and embarrassment that I had been married to a man who had been raping women and didn't have a clue what was going on. I had to go into school and tell my kids' teachers and it was all just so horrifying," she remembers.

Kari tells how, from day one, she was determined to allow the kids to have contact with their dad, and in the past year has taken them three times to visit him in jail.

"As soon as Lonnie stopped denying he was guilty, I began to heal," said Kari. "Listening to his constant lies when he would call on the prison phone, just made me angrier and angrier. I would scream, 'Just tell me the truth, please.' But for months he would just tell me they had got the wrong man. But after he pleaded guilty, I decided that in order to move on, to stop this pain eating away at me, I had to forgive him. Does that mean I am not disgusted by what he has done? No; it just means I have made a decision that I cannot let his actions govern the rest of my life. When we visit we sit in a communal cafeteria type room and play cards and make the best of what is a terrible situation. The kids didn't know him as a monster, they knew him as a fantastic dad and that's how they still feel today."

Kari tells how she has written to the victims telling them of her sorrow for what Lonnie did. She says, "I e-mailed the police officer to hand over a letter. I said I hoped they would not let what my husband did ruin their lives. I said I was so sorry and that I prayed they would find the strength to move on. Still, to this day I have nightmares about what Lonnie did, so I just can't imagine how they feel. People think I am the victim, but really it's them, those poor girls whose lives my husband ruined."

Kari tells how today she is focused on building a new life for her kids. She has recently found a new job in an office and is trying her best to look forward to a happier future. She is even starting a non-profit charity, which she dreams will help families who find themselves in the same dire straits she did thanks to the criminal actions of their loved ones.

"I cannot sink into the pits of despair as I have four kids to love and look after," she says. "So I have had to reinvent my life, find a new path. I always wanted to be a stay-at-home mom, but sadly that's no longer possible. So now I am learning to juggle being a working mom and raising my family and that's okay. I am a strong, determined woman, who will not let what has happened define me. I need to set a good example to my kids. Starting a non-profit organisation was so important to me, as I dream of turning something positive out of this nightmare. I would love to be able to help families who have been plunged into similar situations financially, as for me that was so hard to deal with. It has given me something to focus on in my darkest hours. I constantly remind myself that from now on the only way is up, as the worst that could happen already has."

Through it all, Kari has hope.

"I haven't even given up on love," she says. "I know that what I have been through doesn't make all men monsters. So one day I dream of finding love again."

DEATHS ORDAINED?

WITH her husband dead, she and her children jumped 11 floors to their own deaths.

ON August 3, 1978, Rebecca David, 38, took her seven children to the 11th floor balcony of the International Dune Hotel in Salt Lake City, Utah. The older children jumped willingly. Rebecca threw the younger children off. One grabbed the railing and fought, but Rebecca pulled him loose and let him fall.

In the end, only Rachel David, 15, survived, sustaining injuries that left her in a wheelchair.

The murder-suicide came four days after Immanuel David, 39, committed suicide by inhaling carbon monoxide in a borrowed van at the top of a nearby canyon. The bearded loner believed he was 'the Holy Ghost, Jesus Christ and God – all three at same time,' said the police.

Three stacks of hotel chairs were found on the balcony, and at least three of the older children used them to climb up to the railing for the jump. "Those older children were too old to be thrown out. They could have easily restrained their mother," said hotel manager Jim Bradley. "The people here on the street were furious," said one eyewitness. Several people yelled obscenities at Rebecca, telling her to stop, then – after all the children had jumped or been thrown off – the eyewitnesses called on Rebecca to jump.

Immanuel David had changed his name from Bruce Longo and led a small cult made up mostly of his immediate family. According to detective Roger Kinnorsley, David had been excommunicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints several years before. However, Mormon officials had told police David frequently tried to warn them of what he believed to be impending calamities and had demanded a share of church revenues in return. David and his brood had lived in various Salt Lake City hotels for years. The manager described the family as 'loners'. The children did not speak to anyone without their father's permission, did not use the hotel swimming pool and remained mostly in their suite, where they were home-schooled.

David was apparently unemployed, yet his family had lived in the International Dunes suite for more than a year, paying the bill each day in cash.

The FBI said David was under investigation for wire fraud. Along with a follower, he was accused of soliciting contributions by telling people his daughter had been seriously injured in a car accident.

Tracked down in 1993, survivor Rachel David said: "I remember my father said he will be back. I know he will." Living with an uncle in an undisclosed location, she had apparently tried to commit suicide several times. She had jumped willingly that terrible day in 1978 and believed the family's death had been 'ordained'.

The authorities, however, have a more prosaic explanation for the deaths: Whatever its source, it seemed that David's money had run out at the time of the murder-suicides. Being the egotist that he was, he had likely believed his family couldn't survive without him. It was a belief Rebecca had clearly shared.

'My Dad The Survivor'

A FAMILY'S heartbreaking tale of waiting for an organ transplant.

"A FEW years ago my dad got sick and he ended up in hospital. It was discovered that he had Hepatitis C – the cause of the virus was a blood transfusion he had had when he was much younger.

His condition worsened over time, eventually ending up in liver failure. And so my dad needed a liver transplant as soon as possible. His blood type is O, which makes it more difficult to find a donor. Of course a failing liver is extremely dangerous and causes serious problems for the human body. My dad had to avoid any kind of salt intake, and his food had to be prepared fresh. It changed his life completely.

My father's condition worsened and he was put on the waiting list for a liver donation. This, of course, is a gruelling process. If you're too sick you can't receive a liver, and if you're not sick enough the same applies. My dad applied in 2011. It frustrated him being so sick and not being able to go to work and not having strength. It frustrated us as well, seeing him in such a state, knowing there was nothing we or the doctors could do for him anymore. We could only wait and pray.

A while later my dad ended up in hospital again – this time being told by the doctor that this was it; each and every day that he now lived would be a blessing. We are a close family and this news was very upsetting. We didn't know what to do anymore. We gave up; I think even our faith in God faded. Why did we have to go through something this terrible?

Then one day my mom phoned me, out of breath and in tears, telling me my dad has been sent to the ICU – there was a liver for him! The donor was the same size, weight, blood type... What a shock after waiting for years for a miracle! In the time when our faith had faded, God appeared with a miracle. From my dad dying to being given a second chance on life! We drove immediately to the Wits Donald Gordon Centre.

We had such mixed emotions – happiness and fear at the same time – since we knew that a liver transplant has a 50 percent chance of success only. No doctor could guarantee his survival. That night we all sat by my dad (my mom, brother, sister and her fiancé, me and my fiancé) in the ICU, seeing the fear in his eyes and the shock of it actually happening. The liver transplant was his last hope for survival. None of us could sleep that night – our thoughts were too busy...

The next morning, before 08h00, we had to leave my dad with the team that would be operating on him. Sitting outside the hospital we saw a car arrive, with a container – the liver! Knowing that someone had had to die to give my dad a chance to live, that someone lost their husband, their son or their father and, without knowing it, gave us the most precious gift there is: the gift of life – it was a supremely profound moment.

We were all called in to kiss my dad goodbye before he was pushed into the ICU for an eight-hour operation, an operation that would mean either life or death for him. After we said goodbye tears rolled from our eyes. We said a prayer for him in front of the small church by the hospital, and then we waited...

Sitting in front of the ICU door, waiting for the doctors to come out and give us the news, was terrifying. We did not know what to expect. After hours of waiting, the door was pushed open and the doctor operating told us my dad had survived; he had lost a lot of blood during the transplant, but he had survived... We were overjoyed! God had given us a second chance with our father.

Today my dad is back at work and filled with God's grace... He experiences each and every day with gratitude and unending love for his family."

Keeping Transgende

HAVING spent millions on procedures to look like Kim Kardashian, Thalia Almodovar has also revealed that she loves to be mistaken for her idol.

Thalia was actually born male

WITH her hourglass figure and sultry gaze, curvy Thalia Almodovar is the double of Kim Kardashian. But amazingly, Thalia was actually born male, and has spent thousands to emulate her famous double.

Over the years Thalia has spent more than R1.4-million on style and surgery and is mobbed by fans when she hits the streets of New York.

The 28-year-old has had a butt enhancement and breast implants to achieve Kim's shape and spent more than R400 000 on outfits to match the star's style.

"I think Kim Kardashian is absolutely stunning. She is gorgeous. I love the shape of her body, I think she is beautiful and I admire what she has accomplished," says Thalia.

"I began transitioning in high school but I didn't tell anyone. I don't see myself in the mirror as transgender, I just see myself as a woman. I have always been very feminine since I was little; it's not like I was ever the football player type, so I don't think it's astonishing that I look like Kim." At first, Thalia was a little uneasy about the comparisons. "I went into this boutique in New York in Midtown and the owner thought I was Kim Kardashian and I laughed. It felt a little awkward because I knew I wasn't Kim so I didn't want to feel like an impostor, but it was fun and nice – I took it as a compliment." But life wasn't always so glamorous for her. As a child she recalls crying because she was made to use the boys' bathroom when she wanted to use the girls'.

Eventually she began taking hormones in high school before telling her family. She says, "My father was shocked but he said he would support me."

Obsessed with fashion, she went on to work as a make-up artist. Now Thalia is investigating career opportunities for being a professional lookalike.

"A lot of people have asked me if I want to be a professional lookalike but I didn't even know those existed. I wouldn't know why somebody would want that – I am comfortable in my own skin and would like to be famous for who I am. But I would I like to do it on the side – why not? It would be fun and a new experience and you never know where it might lead," she says. Her obsession with Kim didn't begin until 2009, after watching the reality show Keeping Up With The Kardashians. She says, "My hair was dyed strawberry blonde at the time and

Up With er Kim K!

I was thinking about going back to my natural black. As soon as I did people started staring at me when I was walking along the street – people were nicer to me in stores and I had no idea why. Then one of my friends said, 'You look like Kim Kardashian.' I couldn't see it at first but then I embraced it. I would get preferential treatment in clubs and restaurants – walking down the street people would mob me for selfies, it was incredible." After a while Thalia began emulating Kim's style, finding cheaper alternatives to the star's expensive wardrobe. She says, "Every time Kim was on TV I would Google her immediately to find out who designed her dress. I have an app on my phone that allows me to find replica pieces – that helps a lot. But while my outfits don't cost anything like hers, they're still very expensive."

Thalia has found affordable versions of the red Valentino made famous when Kim wore it in London in September 2012. She also bought the pink PVC crop top and skirt Kim wore in Melbourne. In total she has spent around R200 000 on clothes and shoes to get Mrs West's style.

Clothes, however, were not enough.

Thalia adds, "I couldn't just have Kim's clothes. I also had to have her look – I absolutely love her figure. I have had breast surgery and obviously I had to have my butt done with fat transfers from liposuction.

I am Latina so most of my aunts had big butts, so growing up it wasn't a big deal. I think big butts are always better, but not huge – it has to be something that is in the right proportion to your body."

But it's not just Kim's stunning looks that hit home with Thalia – she also wants to emulate her powerful personality. "Everything about Kim's attitude really resonates with me – people think that she doesn't deserve to be where she is but she doesn't care, she just carries on building her empire. That's what I want to do. Some people don't like the fact that I'm transgender and still successful – but just like Kim I don't care. I love my life and I love being mistaken for Kim," says Thalia.

Of course, sharing a likeness with one of the world's most recognisable women can have its downsides.

"Sometimes I am just not in the mood when guys just want to talk to me because I look like Kim; who aren't interested in getting to know me. I had this guy who dated me only because he had an obsession with Kim – it was like almost a fantasy," she says, adding, "I'm single now so I'm on the lookout for my own Kanye."

Thalia claims that she's managed to find cheaper alternatives to Kim's clothing

THANK YOU to my mom and my dad for buying an iPad for me for my schoolwork. I promise I will take care of it and not drop it or lose it.

I WOULD like to thank Abe from Hirsch in Ballito for his help and kindness. I had had a swing chair repaired (under guarantee) and when I went to collect it we could not fit it into my car – they must have made it a little fatter than it was. Abe tried numerous ways to fit it in but to no avail. In the end he offered to bring it to my house in his van, which he did within the hour. A huge thank you to Abe especially and also the other employees of Hirsch Ballito who always go the extra mile for all their customers.

Pam Weaver, Ballito

THANK YOU to everyone who sent their kind wishes and support and made donations to our daughter's favourite charity instead of flowers for her funeral. They helped to make a tragic event more bearable.

I NEEDED to return an item to Clicks and must thank the staff at the Sandton City branch who were helpful and allowed me to exchange the gift, which was a duplicate, for something I wanted in their store, even though I didn't have a slip.

PLEASE thank the teacher at our local school who has started a reading group for the little ones. They love their reading time and can now appreciate books!

PREPARE for a feast of bizarre facts, shattering real-life accounts from survivors, scandalous allegations and harrowing fatal flaws as, week by week, we piece together the mysterious puzzle behind one of history's most talked-about tragedies: the Titanic.

LIFE AFTER THE TITANIC

THEY may have survived one of the greatest tragedies in history, but guilt would plague them for the rest of their lives.

Helen Newsom and Karl Behr

Of the estimated 2 223 passengers onboard the legendary Titanic, only 706 people survived.

While some of those who escaped a watery grave went on to live each day as if it were their last, many survivors were cursed – never able to forget the horrors they saw that night, or block out the screams of the dying. This week we reveal some of the stories of what happened to the survivors in the years that followed the ship's sinking.

IRONICALLY, out of the tragedy a love story was spun. Karl Behr, a then 24-year-old professional American tennis player, boarded Titanic to woo the woman of his dreams, 19-year-old Helen Newsom. Helen's mom Sallie was against the couple forming a relationship and tried to break them apart by taking her daughter on a 'grand tour' of Europe. Following the trip, she booked two First Class tickets on Titanic. When Karl found out, he also booked a ticket so he could spend more time with Helen. After the collision with the iceberg tennis partners, Dean Mathey.

Helen's story was covered in author Lindsay Gibbs' Titanic: The Tennis Story

THERE was a number of other couples onboard Titanic, including Madeleine, 18, and her husband, John Astor, 47 – one of the richest men in the world. The pair were travelling home from their honeymoon in Egypt and Europe. John, whose family made its fortune in opium, fur trade and real estate, went down with the ship after helping his pregnant wife escape into the last lifeboat. The young widow inherited over R1.4-billion (in today's value), as well as John's multi-million dollar mansion, but was only eligible to the inheritance if she remained unmarried for the rest of her life. A year later, Madeleine decided to forego the huge fortune and went on to marry (and divorce) twice. Suffering from depression and suicidal tendencies, she became increasingly dependent on prescription drugs and died on March 27, 1940, aged 47, from a rumoured overdose of sleeping pills.

ANOTHER wife to survive the sinking but lose her husband was Charlotte Collyer. Charlotte, 31, and her daughter Marjorie, seven, were rescued, but Charlotte's husband Harvey died in the sinking.

Harvey was a merchant in England and had been the parish clerk in the village where the family lived. After his beloved wife contracted tuberculosis, Harvey decided to sell everything they had and buy a fruit farm in Idaho, hoping the climate would help Charlotte recover sooner. Two years after Harvey's death, Charlotte remarried. She finally succumbed to the tuberculosis and died in 1916, at the age of 35. Her second husband died less than three years later, leaving Marjorie to be raised by her uncle.

EVA HART was one of 56 children who survived the sinking. Then aged seven, Eva was a Second Class passenger travelling with her parents. Her father died in the tragedy. For a long time, Eva was plagued with nightmares about what happened. When she turned 23, she decided to confront her fears by returning to the sea and locking herself in a cabin for four straight days until the nightmares went away. It worked, and she stopped being afraid. Before her death at the ripe age of 91, Eva wrote an autobiography, Shadow Of The Titanic – A Survivor's Story, in which she described her experiences aboard the ship and the lasting implications of its sinking. On April 15, 1995, the 83rd anniversary of the disaster, she and fellow Second-Class Titanic survivor Edith Brown Haisman dedicated a memorial garden plaque on the grounds of the National Maritime Museum in London.

AT just two months old, Elizabeth Gladys Millvina Dean was one of the youngest passengers aboard Titanic and the youngest survivor. Her brother, Bertram, who was a few weeks short of his second birthday, also survived, along with their mother Georgette (their father, Frank, 25, did not). Coincidentally, Elizabeth was also the last of the Titanic survivors. As an adult, Elizabeth worked for the British government during the Second World War and later as a purchaser for a local engineering firm. It was not until she was in her 70s that she became involved in Titanic-related events. Over the years, she participated in numerous conventions, exhibitions, documentaries, television and radio interviews, and personal correspondence. She died in a nursing home in England at age 97. Bertram also made the list of longest-lived survivors. He died at age 81 on the 80th anniversary of the sinking, on April 14, 1992.

ONE of the most well-known stories about Titanic's survivors is that of the Navratil children. Michel, four, and Edmond, two, boarded the Titanic as Second Class passengers

Their dad had separated from their mother and lost custody of his sons, so decided to illegally take them and emigrate to America. When the Titanic hit the iceberg, Michel Sr wrapped his children up in a blanket and placed them in the last collapsible lifeboat. The two were later rescued by the Carpathia and reunited with their mother, who did not know their whereabouts until she saw their picture in the newspaper. Michel Sr's body was recovered from the Atlantic's icy water. The Navratil children were the only children to be rescued from the Titanic without a parent or guardian.

TEN Titanic survivors committed suicide. The first was stewardess Annie Robinson who was sailing across the Atlantic to visit her daughter in Boston ten years after the tragedy and jumped overboard. The last was Frederick Fleet, the lookout on the Titanic who first spotted the iceberg. He hanged himself from a clothesline in his garden in 1965. Teen Jack Thayer, 17, also later took his own life. Travelling in First Class with his parents, Jack waited until the ship had almost submerged before he jumped from a rail into the sea. While he survived, his dad did not. Jack returned to America with his mother. He married and had six children – one of whom became a co-pilot of an American bomber and was killed in action in the Pacific. After suffering a nervous breakdown in 1945, Jack slashed his wrists and throat.

NBA player and Basketball Hall of Famer Moses Malone has passed away at the age of 60. Malone played in both the American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association from 1974 through 1995 and was one of basketball's most ferocious rebounders. According to his family, Malone died in Norfolk, Virginia, where he was scheduled to appear at the Still Hope Foundation Celebrity Golf Tournament – a charity event. He was found unresponsive and not breathing in his room by hotel staff shortly before 08h00 on Sunday September 13. Norfolk Fire Rescue responded and pronounced Malone dead at the scene. A cause of death has not been confirmed but it's believed he died of a heart attack. Malone leaves behind two sons. His now ex-wife, Alfreda, divorced him in 1992, after she accused Malone of emotional abuse and infidelity.

Djokovic's Triple Whammy

ROGER FEDERER is nursing a bruised ego after losing to Novak Djokovic, who clinched his third Grand Slam title of 2015 and 10th career major with a 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 triumph, moving him within one win of Björn Borg and Rod Laver in the all-time greatest list. "It's been an incredible season, next to 2011 the best of my life," says Djokovic, who also won three Grand Slam titles four years ago. "But I'm enjoying this year more than I did any previous one because I'm a husband and a father, and that makes it sweeter." Djokovic and wife Jelena officially tied the knot on July 10, 2014 in Montenegro just a few short days after he won the title at Wimbledon. According to reports, there was a major lockdown on the seaside resort and employees, waiters and staff all had to sign confidentiality agreements. The couple released photos of the ceremony exclusively through an international tabloid magazine, donating the money from the sale to charity. The couple have a son together, Stefan.

Ko Shatters Golf History

NEW ZEALAND'S Lydia Ko rewrote golfing history when she became the youngest major winner. Ko shot an eight-under 63 to blitz her Evian Championship rivals by six strokes in France, finishing at 16 under par. At the time of the victory the world number two was exactly 18 years, four months and 20 days old! The previous record was held by American Morgan Pressel, who was 18 years, 10 months and nine days old when she won the Kraft Nabisco in 2007. "It has been such an unbelievable experience," Ko says. "Now everybody won't ask me when I will win my first major because it is done. It is definitely one of the top rounds of my whole life."

Money Bags' Ferocious Farewell

says he made at least R950-million from his recent fight against Andre Berto. With more than enough cash in his kitty, the boxing sensation can retire 'comfortably' and says 'he has nothing left to prove'. Mayweather scored a unanimous decision victory (117-111, 118-110, 120-108) over Berto at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas, Nevada. The landslide points victory means the 38-year-old now matches the longest undefeated career in the sport, which the great Rocky Marciano established when he quit in 1955. Finishing with a perfect career record of 49-0, Mayweather says he will now be focusing his energy on becoming a boxing promoter and finding the next ring legend. "It's part of boxing history," he says. "Records are made to be broken. Hopefully, we can now find the next Floyd Mayweather who can break the record. I want to be a part of it, as a promoter." With 17 of his 19-year career spent as a world champion, Mayweather has accumulated statistics and earnings that make him arguably the most successful boxer in history. He has world titles won across five weight divisions, from super-featherweight to light-middleweight, and made overall earnings of close to R8-billion.

Cop Brutality Goes Viral

FORMER tennis star

James Blake was roughed up by police and arrested in New York recently. Now a video of the violent incident has gone public. Blake was slammed to the ground outside a New York City hotel after the retired tennis star was misidentified as a suspect in a fraudulent credit card ring.

Blake was 'attacked' while standing on the pavement in front of the Grand Hyatt in midtown Manhattan. He was waiting for a car to take him to the US Open. In surveillance footage released by the police Blake is seen being tackled and handcuffed by the officer, who was wearing plainclothes and never identified himself as a policeman. "My initial reaction, being naive, I guess, is this is probably a fan or someone just having fun and giving me a big hug, someone I don't recognise from high school," says Blake. "About three seconds later, I realised it wasn't someone giving me a friendly hug, that's for sure." According to police, the 38-year-old officer misidentified Blake as a suspect. Blake, who was detained for about 10 minutes until responding officers realised their mistake, suffered minor injuries. The officer has since been placed on desk duty but Blake is gunning for him to be fired. "He shouldn't have a badge because in my opinion what he's doing is tarnishing that badge," says Blake. "Physically, I'm okay. The emotional scars are going to take a little more time to heal, because I was embarrassed. I was embarrassed to be handcuffed, in the middle of the day, on 42nd Street." The case has put a national spotlight on what critics say are overly aggressive tactics used by NYPD officers.

MARIAH CAREY

Before They Were Famous

BY ANGELA BEKIARIS

THEY'RE big stars now, but it wasn't always the case...

SHE'S one of the biggest stars in the world, but for Mariah Carey it has taken hard work and determination to get there. Today a super rich superstar, the talented singer – whose spectacular vocal range spans five octave (two octaves higher than normal soprano) – wasn't always in the limelight. We dug into her past and this is what we found....

* MARIAH was born in Long Island, New York to Patricia (Hickey), who is of Irish descent, and Alfred Roy Carey, who was of Afro-Venezuelan ancestry.

* SHE was named after They Call The Wind Mariah, a song from the musical Paint Your Wagon – her full name is Mariah Angela Carey.

* MARIAH'S mother, Patricia, is a former mezzo-soprano New York City opera singer and a freelance vocal coach – she was also Mariah's vocal coach, and discovered Mariah's talent in 1972 while rehearsing at home for her New York City Opera debut as Maddalena in Giuseppe Verdi's Rigoletto. Patricia said, "From the time Mariah was a tiny girl she sang on true pitch; she was able to hear sound and duplicate it exactly. I missed my cue, but Mariah didn't. She sang it – in Italian – at exactly the right point. She wasn't even three."

* MARIAH'S family was a target for their multiracial roots – people would burn crosses on their lawn, poison their dogs, their car was blown up, and a shot fired through the kitchen window while they were eating dinner.

* MARIAH wanted to be a genie when she was a kid.

* SHE failed her driver's license test three times.

* SHE attended Greenlawn's Harborfields High School.

* SHE later studied cosmetology in Manhattan – she spent over 500 hours at beauty school and in a hair salon prior to becoming a singer.

* MARIAH worked a variety of odd jobs to support herself, including hat/coat-checker, hostess, hair sweeper in hair salons, and waitress. According to the star, she got fired from all her jobs because of her attitude and because she was concentrating on becoming a backing singer.

* SHE had the nickname 'Mirage' in high school, because she never showed up for class.

* HER paternal grandfather, Roberto Nuñez, changed his last name to Carey after moving to New York City from Cuba, hoping a British Isles surname would help him make a good life in the United States. He took the name Carey from his biological father. Roberto's mother, Margarita Nuñez, was with a man named Carey, but they were not married.

* MARIAH was once a backup singer for Brenda Starr.

* IN June 1990, Mariah made her debut with Mariah Carey, which went multiplatinum and spawned four consecutive number one singles on the US Billboard Hot 100 chart.

* UNDER the guidance of Columbia Records executive and later husband Tommy Matola, the singer continued booking success with follow-up albums including Emotions, Music Box, Merry Christmas and Daydream.
